Competition grows among Carter staff

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter says he likes competition among his staff members, but there are signs he may be getting more than he wanted.

The gentle tug-of-war between the old Carter hands and the button-down newcomers that simmered during the campaign is picking up now that the high-stakes game of building an administration has begun.

One sign this week was the thick memo that campaign manager Hamilton Jordan sent to Carter suggestig ways to staff his administration.

This product duplicates to a degree the voluminous recommendations of Carter's transition staff, headed by Atlanta lawyer Jack Watson.

Both men today denied there was any rivalry or competition between them, saying any reports to that effect are "nonsense, all nonsense."

Watson noted that "there's still a lot of work to be done."

The two men made their comments as they stepped off a chartered plane at the Americus, Ga., airport before driving to nearby Plains to meet with the president-elect.

Watson and Jordan said their approaches to the transition and the presidency as described in separate memos to Carter are "complimentary" and not rival proposals.

They said they would discuss with Carter the kinds of persons who will be working directly with him in the White House and the best means of finding individuals for consideration as possible appointees to top governmental posts.

One Carter insider, referring to the Watson+Jordan situation, said: "I guess we can expect more of that. I don't think there's any doubt Jimmy's going to receive competing recommendations, and he's not going to say, 'Hey, stop that,' because he likes competition among the corps.

What's going on apparently is an effort by Jordan to re-establish himself in the Carter hierarchy now that his campaign job is over.

The pecking order among the Carter cadre turns largely on how long and how well a member has known the chief. The senior member, Charles Kirbo, goes back to 1962, when he won a lawsuit that saved Carter's election to the state Senate from alleged vote fraud by the opposition.

Jordan came in the next group, consisting of those who worked for Carter in his losing bid for the governorship in 1966. Press Secretary Jody Powell joined in 1970 when Carter ran for governor again and won, and he has been one of Carter's closest aides ever since.

Jordan, meantime, served as Carter's executive secretary and began planning the drive that climaxed this month with a Cinderella capture of the White House. Friends say Jordan fully expected that when the battle was won, he would resume his place at Carter's right hand in building the new administration.

Last summer, however, Watson proposed to Carter a plan for preparing the White House transition in advance and laying the groundwork for anticipated legislative programs and executive initiatives.

The idea was to enable Carter to hit Washington on the run and make his imprint quickly instead of settling slowly into the job the way most presidents have, with the exception of Franklin Roosevelt's first 100 days which had been planned by a similar "brain trust."

Phelps plans to submit new GOP legislation

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Republican Lt. Gov. William Phelps says he will continue to carry the torch of the BondPhelps administration during the next four years under the Democratic Gov.-elect Joseph P. Teasdale.

Phelps, who won re-election Nov. 2 while Gov. Christopher S. Bond did not, said he planned to introduce legislation in the legislature which Bond had intended to submit.

During the taping of the program "Missouri Forum" for broadcast Sunday, Phelps said he was looking forward to working with the new leadership and new members of the Missouri Senate. As lieutenant governor, Phelps is the Senate's presiding officer.

He described the designated president pro tem, Sen. Norman E. Merrell of Monticello, as a "fine, outstanding, conscientious senator."

Among the programs which Bond said he would introduce if re-elected included the establishment of minimum fixed sentences for crimes committed by repeat offenders, an emergency appropriation to provide funds for a state-supported transportation program for the elderly, making permanent the local option half-cent sales tax for public transportation and a radiation protection act, giving the state strong authority over nuclear safety.

Phelps, 42, is the first lieutenant governor elected in 36 years to be of a different party from that of the governor.

He said he hoped to establish a "good working relationship" with Teasdale.

"It is a natural role that I would have the opportunity to speak out in the event there's a need to do so as a member of the opposition party," he said. "I do anticipate doing that only if there is a problem which arises or if there is a program or issue that needs attention."

When Teasdale travels out of state, Phelps will be in charge of Missouri government. 3

3 n working with Gov. Bond, I've always had the confidence of the governor and have carried on the day-to-day matters of the administration while he was tending to matters pertaining to the state of Missouri outside the state," Phelps said. "I would anticipate that I could continue that same role under the governor elect, providing that he gives the same kind of confidence and cooperation to me. And I'm hopeful that relationship can be developed."

Tax forms will be more complicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you get a pocket calculator for Christmas, it's likely to come in handy when you tote up your federal income tax after the New Year.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander is warning taxpayers that completing the new tax return "could be more difficult" than in the past. One reason is the amount of math that will be required for the first time for many taxpayers.

Alexander's message is contained in an introduction to the new 1040, the so-called long form, that the IRS released Thursday.

This year, hundreds of thousands of taxpayers who had become accustomed to just adding up their income and then finding their taxes on a table will now have to take several other steps. n

They'll start by adding up their income, as tmhave in the past. But then they will have to subtract either standard or itemized deductions and then personal exemptions to reach taxable income. Only at that point could new tables be used to find the tax load.

Taxpayers can expect to receive their forms by midJanuary, about two weeks later than usual. Alexander said the delay results from late passage in the Congress of 1976 tax legislation.

Money supply will not be eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Burns says he intends to cooperate with the Carter administration and the new Congress, but the Federal Reserve Board chairman also warns against any Democratic efforts to give the economy a quick boost.

Burns told the Senate Banking Committee on Thursday that there is a "clear need" for expansion of the economies of industrial nations. But he said the traditional methods of economic stimulation could be counter-productive.

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he would consider a tax cut if the economy does not pick up before he takes office in January.

Burns, 72, whose term as Fed chairman does not expire until 1978, said it would be "a ruinous policy" for the Fed to suddenly take all restraint off the money supply.

Burns' testimony did little to quell speculation that there could be an early clash between him and Carter on economic policy.

Carter is committed to promoting programs to create jobs, but Burns said past methods of stimulating employment, such as budget deficits and easy credit, "cannot work well in an environment that has become highly sensitive to inflationary fears and expectations.

"Lasting prosperity will not be achieved until our country solves its chronic problem of inflation," he said.

When Burns said the Fed's new targets for money growth — down to 6.5 per cent from 7 per cent previously — did not represent a tightening of the money supply, committee chairman Sen. William Proxmire, D+Wis., expressed dismay.

"You're a very convincing man, but what you are trying to convince me of is that down is really up...It's hard to adjust to the idea that 6.5 per cent is higher than 7 per cent," Proxmire said.

The rate of growth of the nation's money supply is important to the economy because it influences interest rates, which in turn influence borrowing by business and consumers. Higher interest rates usually mean slower growth; lower interest rates promote faster growth.

John Hux Jr., 1008 Euclid Drive, was named Outstanding Young Farmer by the Sikeston Jaycees and Ken Williams, Route Two, was presented the Chamber of Commerce Agri-Business Award during the 1976 Farmers Recognition Banquet Thursday night at the Sikeston High School cafetorium.

Tennessee humorist Cotton Ivy and the Sikeston High School Moderne Chorale provided entertainment for the 421 people attending the dinner.

Hux, 34, started farming in 1966 with a half interest in 535 acres. He now farms 2,254 acres in Scott, Stoddard and New Madrid counties, on which he grows a variety of crops, including cotton, wheat, soybeans, milo, corn and popcorn.

He also has a Polled Hereford operation that includes 57 cows and 51 calves.

He is a member of First United Methodist Church, Missouri Cattlemen's Association, National Cattlemen's Association, Missouri Soybean Association and National Soybean Association.

Hux is a past member of the Scott County Extension Council and the Governor's Conference on Agriculture from 1974 to 1976.

He has a degree in education from Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau. He and his wife Ann have two children.

Williams, 43, started working for the Sikeston Production Credit Association in 1966, where he now holds the position of vice president.

The Farmers Recognition Banquet was originally conceived by Williams.

He has a part-time farming operation of 212 acres located east of Sikeston.

He has a bachelor's degree in agriculture from the University of Tennessee and a bachelor's degree in business administration from University of Chattanooga.

He is a member of First United Methodist Church and treasurer of the Sikeston High School Parents and Teachers Organization.

He and his wife Nancy have three children.

In addition to Hux and Williams, the banquet honored 16 area farm families from Scott, Stoddard, New Madrid and Mississippi counties.

Prairie council discusses

Progress in CD construction

EAST PRAIRIE — Reports on the progress of construction under the Community Development Block Grant Program and the need for stiffened mobile home regulations were discussed Thursday night by the City Council.

City Manager Frank Carter reported that progress on the installation of culverts and the filling of Flour Mill Ditch by Boyer Construction Co. of Sikeston is proceeding rapidly with pipe and fill now across County Road.

Carter also reported curbing has been completed on West Pine Street by Cowan Construction Co. of Sikeston, in preparation for paving, and about one-fourth of the curbing on Lombardy Drive has been poured.

Applications for a housing rehabilitation grant and loan for the $75,000 allotted under the CD grant program are available at City Hall. Carter said some 15-16 applications have already been filed and are being processed.

A resolution was approved for requisition of funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for work and supplies completed to date under the CD program.

Following discussion, the city attorney was instructed to prepare an ordinance amendment requiring persons moving new mobile homes into town to buy a permit based on the valuation of the trailer rather than the present set fee of $10.

Owners who move a mobile home in without complying with the city ordinances can be fined not less than $25 nor more than $100 per day.

A delegation of men from West Side Baptist Church met with the council to determine what steps should be taken to have Powers Street., on which the church is located, extended to intersect with Highway 80 near the west city limits.

The property between Powers Street and the highway is owned by Ray Lewis. Carter said he would contact Lewis and arrange a meeting.

The men were also told the city would haul dirt to fill holes in the church parking lot.

The need for a fire district to be established and a limit on how far the city fire truck should be taken outside the city limits, as well as a shortage of volunteer firemen, were discussed.

Carter and Councilmen Jones Hedge and Kenny Boyd were named to a committee to study and possibly set up a new fire protection program.

In routine action the council approved the collector's report for October of $27,195.70, police judge's report of $889 assessed in fines and expenditures of $5,570.41.

Council debates trash problem

BLOOMFIELD — Problems of haphazard building which has not been approved by the city and garbage being dumped in a creek within the city limits were tackled by the City Council Thursday, but solutions evaded the council members in both instances.

The dumping problem was brought up by Darrel Young, who lives on Court Street next to the creek where the dumping has occurred.

Members of the council agreed that a problem does exist. Alderman Larry Lancaster, after looking it over earliler this week, said there are places where people have dumped household trash there even though the city provides free trash pickups.

He was in favor of taking immediate action.

"I don't know who's responsibility it is to clean it out," he said, "but it sure needs it. We need to get two or three no dumping signs and put them up there. It's ridiculous!"

The rest of the council took a more cautious approach, however, deciding to call on the Clean Water Commission for recommendations and to contact both the water commission and Missouri Division of Health in writing.

In the meantime, Young was asked to find out if the dumping was on his land or on someone else's land, which would help to determine how to handle the problem.

The problem of unplanned building in the city was brought out in discussion about whether water could be supplied to a house being built by Don Hanner and how it could be provided.

The question was not settled Thursday night because it could not be determined if a water line already existed in the area.

Lancaster proposed that a four-inch line be laid in the area to provide for future building at an estimated cost of more than $1,000.

During the discussion, Mayor Glen Ayers pointed out that the way water bills are set up does not provide that much for capital improvements.

It was also learned that Hanner apparently had not acquired a building permit.

City ordinances require that a building permit at a flat cost of $7.50 be approved by the mayor and City Council before construction can start.

Ayers suggested that since the council has not been enforcing this ordinance, part of the problem lies in the fact that the matter of whether water and sewers are provided in an area are discussed after construction has started.

Asked how many buildings in the city have been built illegally, one city official suggested "nearly all." The statement was then qualified by a notation that the law has been in effect only about 10 years.

Building permits have been issued by the city but not by the council. A city worker at city hall issues the permits, which does not allow the council an opportunity to clear up any confusion before construction starts.

One alderman said the problem will be discussed in more detail at the council's next meeting, which is set for 7 p.m. Nov. 23.

Portageville store burns

PORTAGEVILLE — A fire at 9:50 p.m. Thursday destroyed Bakers Big Star Supermarket at 106 King St.

Cause of the fire has not been determined, but a fireman reported that it appeared the fire had started in the back part of the large metal building, where he said new meat and produce coolers had been recently installed.

The fireman said that when he arrived within minutes of the alarm, the store was filled with dense smoke and flames were breaking through the roof.

The blaze was confined to the store building by the fire department and no outside help was called.

Four firemen remained at the scene this morning wetting down the ruins. The building was gutted and all contents were lost. However, no figures on the estimated loss were available.

Members of the council agreed that a problem does exist. Alderman Larry Lancaster, after looking it over earliler this week, said there are places where people have dumped household trash there even though the city provides free trash pickups.

He was in favor of taking immediate action.

"I don't know who's responsibility it is to clean it out," he said, "but it sure needs it. We need to get two or three no dumping signs and put them up there. It's ridiculous!"

The rest of the council took a more cautious approach, however, deciding to call on the Clean Water Commission for recommendations and to contact both the water commission and Missouri Division of Health in writing.

In the meantime, Young was asked to find out if the dumping was on his land or on someone else's land, which would help to determine how to handle the problem.

The problem of unplanned building in the city was brought out in discussion about whether water could be supplied to a house being built by Don Hanner and how it could be provided.

The question was not settled Thursday night because it could not be determined if a water line already existed in the area.

Lancaster proposed that a four-inch line be laid in the area to provide for future building at an estimated cost of more than $1,000.

During the discussion, Mayor Glen Ayers pointed out that the way water bills are set up does not provide that much for capital improvements.

It was also learned that Hanner apparently had not acquired a building permit.

City ordinances require that a building permit at a flat cost of $7.50 be approved by the mayor and City Council before construction can start.

Ayers suggested that since the council has not been enforcing this ordinance, part of the problem lies in the fact that the matter of whether water and sewers are provided in an area are discussed after construction has started.

Asked how many buildings in the city have been built illegally, one city official suggested "nearly all." The statement was then qualified by a notation that the law has been in effect only about 10 years.

Building permits have been issued by the city but not by the council. A city worker at city hall issues the permits, which does not allow the council an opportunity to clear up any confusion before construction starts.

One alderman said the problem will be discussed in more detail at the council's next meeting, which is set for 7 p.m. Nov. 23.

TRANSKEI INDEPENCENCE

The enemies of any kind of peaceful solution to the racial problem of southern Africa have raised a great hue and cry against the first black state to be given independence by South Africa — the Transkei. This 17,000 square mile homeland of the Xhosa tribe, bordering the Indian Ocean and inhabited by some 1.3 million people, became independent on October 26th. It is more populous and more economically viable than many other Third World states, but in the eyes of its critics this is quite irrelevant. What they cannot stand is the possibility that the new state will be a success and in succeeding that it will serve as a model for other independent national homelands.

The opponents of South Africa want violence. Listen to them talk and this becomes immediately obvious. They want to see the white society there utterly crushed, and the more blood that flows in the process the more they will enjoy it. They mask their mindless hatred by a simple ideological slogan — "black majority rule" — as if the blacks in question were a simple homogeneous group.

But this has no relation to reality. The tribal groups in South Africa have different languages, different cultures, and to some extent historical enmities. They are as different from each other as Germans and French. Why is it always assumed that South Africa must remain as a single political unit?

There is no guarantee that the Transkei type solution will work either, we hasten to add. There is the very large problem of the urban blacks who no longer feel any tribal kinship or political loyalty to their homelands. South Africa must still confront this problem and has not really found an answer.

Nevertheless, we say, give the homeland idea a chance. Just because the Transkei has evolved into statehood peacefully does not automatically doom it to failure. Those who argue that we must reject it out of hand are people who have nothing but malice in their souls.

NOTICEABLE DIFFERENCE

It's really true, as Dorothy Parker rhymed, that men don't make passes at girls who wear glasses. But women like men just as well with or without spectacles. Or so reports the Sight Improvement Center, a New York company that specializes in contact lenses.

A study made by the center of 670 female and 550 male patients found that more than 70 per cent of the women who replaced their glasses with contact lenses "became almost instantly more popular with the opposite sex." They received more compliments and were asked out on dates almost twice as often as when they wore glasses.

On the other hand, only 10 per cent of the single men said they noticed any difference in their ability to obtain dates.

'HOUSE' CLEANING FOR EXTRACURRICULAR PAYOFFS?

The major payoff for members of the House of Representatives is in the "perks" --the free airplane rides, hotel rooms, special entertainment, honorariums, inside information on money-making opportunities and a variety of assorted services-- all from friendly people who hope the Congressman will vote the right way.

There are no reliable figures available but it is likely from studies I've seen that perhaps a fifth to a fourth of our Representatives take advantage of these extracurricular payoffs. With clear conscience, of course.

There was much talk on Capitol Hill after Watergate of a house cleaning. That talk withered.

The Wayne Hays (D- Ohio) scandal revived the talk with a vengeance. There was enough sex in the story to focus national attention on what Congressmen were doing with tax money. But it appears that this matter may well end, too, with the demotion of Hays, partial emasculation of the Administration Committee and a rechanneling of the route by which expense account funds reach Congressmen. For all the excitement over the Hays- Ray affair, this was peanuts compared with the influence peddling that determines how hundreds of millions, sometimes billions of tax dollars are spent.

There was hope for a time that the combination of Watergate and Hays- Ray might coerce Congress to pass some sort of meaningful bill to make public gifts of value to legislators by lobbyists; and a companion bill to require legislators to report special favors received--

Now it appears that one way or another, both of these bills may be stalled permanently in the House.

Surveys indicate that everyone-- almost-- is in favor of disclosure.

Then comes a push to introduce amendments which can emasculate disclosure bills past all understanding.

It has been customary to describe opposition to lobbying disclosure bills as coming from big business-- and only big business. In matter of fact, Ralph Nader's organization, The Public Citizen, the AFL-CIO, as well as the Chamber of Commerce and a myriad of liberal organizations, conservative and middle of the road, pro- business, anti-business and the rest, all have been in the forefront of the fight against full, detailed disclosure of where lobbying funds come from and where they go.

All wave the flag, except where their own organization is concerned. And all have silent cooperation from a wide range of Congressmen.

As one man working to push the law through put it: "It's hard to tell the white hats from the black hats."

But the battle is not being fought on the House floor but rather in committee, where the maneuvering is fast and shifty. A seemingly innocuous amendment is offered here and another one there which, in analysis, would gut the proposals. This means more delays for reconsideration and new maneuvering.

The prospect is that the maneuvering will go on until adjournment. Then the fight will be over for this Congress. By next year, the Hays affair will have gathered dust. Members of the House will be peacefully able to pass cosmetic bills to impress their constituents.

THE IDEOLOGICAL COUNTER ATTACK OF WORLD WAR III

Although Ronald Reagan has been the only candidate for the presidential nomination that has pointed to this problem, Alexander Solzhenitsyn has warned us that World War III has begun in the ideological sense-- and that we in the free world are losing it. In a BBC television broadcast he declared: "Freedom has been lost in Laos, China, Angola. Tyrants, bandits, puppets have come to power and pragmatic (Western) philosophy says: that doesn't matter, we have to recognize them. But freedom is indivisible, and one has to take a moral attitude towards it. You Western people, you simply cannot grasp the power of Soviet propaganda; today you remain 'British imperialists' who wish to strangle the whole earth."

Solzhenitsyn then described how detente was being used as a weapon against the West in exploiting the so- called "Spirit of Helsinki." He warned that the Soviet propaganda machine could change its whole posture within one morning, and that the population were prepare for this by their Communist overlords.

The impact upon many of the viewers in Britain has been most encouraging, and it prompted former Labor Foreign Minister, Lord George Brown, to resign from the Labor Party as his personal gesture against the drift towards a Marxist tyranny. This stirred American television companies to screen the Solzhenitsyn interview where it is reported to have made an impact in Washington.

In a trans- atlantic discussion about the program, Dr. Arthur Schlesinger confirmed that the illusion in the West that detente meant "live and let live" had faded in the face of the reality, that there was no detente in the ideological war as far as the Soviets were concerned.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey admitted that the United States "had little or no African policy." He "would hope that the world, and particularly the Soviets would understand that the United States is not a weakling." As former British Prime Minister Edward Heath pointed out the Soviets had correctly assessed that the U.S. Congress would prevent the President from doing anything about Soviet- backed Cuban mercenaries in Angola.

As Intelligence Digest noted some time ago, there are encouraging signs of a re-awakening in the West, but we have a long way to go yet. The Communists have advanced more in the last twelve months that any any time since the end of World War II, and they have not been halted yet. Secretary Kissinger is now alarmed about the spread of Marxism, particularly in Europe.

Meanwhile there is the danger of the enemy within.

HIGH SCHOOL PROSTITUTES

PROSTITUTION IS OFTEN spoken of a victimless crime, one in which both parties consent to the act without doing injury to anyone else, a matter of commerce which ruffles Puritan feathers because it happens to be sexual.

Under that argument, it becomes a noncrime no matter what the law says. But the argument pales when you get down to specifics as reporter Lynn Norment of The Commercial Appeal did in a story Tuesday.

She documented something which has been common knowledge for years, that some high school girls have become prostitutes. Are they not victims, if only of their own ignorance?

By accepting the idea that sex is a fit commodity to be bartered in exchange for spending money and clothes, they surrender that most attractive quality of youth, innocence.

Most of them all but give that innocence away. A pimp with a big car and loud clothes takes it and sells the illusion remaining. It's a sordid trade.

Prostitution is one of those subjects sociologists can study beyond the financial limits set by any grant. The conclusions they reach are no more instructive, and not much more accurate, than those offered by those who depend more on intuition. Prostitution is a grubby business which preys on young girls. It is difficult to control, perhaps impossible to stop.

But the effort should be made and it should be made particularly in the schools. School counselors and teachers must warn against it and explain the grim consequences. Pimps should be a continual target of police.

There is not enough cynic in us to accept some of the realities of modern society, and high school prostitution is one.

Unions Going Bankrupt?

Female, Ethnic, Gov't. anti-job discrimination actions hitting labor constantly with heavy fines

WASHINGTON — You can believe it. Many national labor leaders, besieged by unofficial and government civil rights and equal employment opportunity agencies, are wondering if it's all worthwhile; whether the courts will fine their local and national unions into bankruptcy and whether they can hold their organizations together under the assaults of minority and women's groups.

Anti-discrimination in employment suits are hitting the unions as well as the employers, like enfilading fire in Lebanon's hills. And the post-election "new spirit" isn't exactly soothing the nerves of harassed labor chiefs. Already, federal court equal employment violation fines are heavy. Already, the escalating court dockets are planet-high.

Already, national unions' treasuries, many of them big ones, are so much in the red, dues have had to be raised. Yet they can easily be bankrupt because between 30 and 40 per cent of the back pay and damage awards by the federal courts to ethnic and female litigants hit the unions as well as the "companies."

For example, while down in San Antonio, Tex., during election campaign coverage, I ran into a court action brought by 10 blacks and Hispanics against Braniff Airways, Inc. They charged violation of affirmative action and equal employment rights. The plaintiffs claimed they were discriminated against because they were black and Spanish-surnamed American employes and because of race and national origin.

Co-defendants with Braniff were the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM) and the Teamsters (IBT). The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission joined in the action against the airline and the unions. Last month a decree was filed in the U.S. District Court in San Antonio -- granting more than $1 million to the alleged victims of bias.

This must be paid by the airline and the two unions. Note now that if the locals can't get up the money for back pay and promotion to more lucrative jobs, which the accusers say they were denied, then the IAM and the IBT national offices must come to the rescue of their locals. Note, too -- there are over 1,900 IAM lodges and some 800 Teamsters locals.

Any sudden wave of such successful court actions could break the national unions' treasuries, big as these organizations are. An average of some 10 such court decisions and decrees a year runs upward of a million dollars. Not too long ago, the United Steelworkers union was hit for $5 million on similar charges.

Most famous now in professional circles is the Uniroyal case which could cost the company -- and in an intricate fashion, says a high government official -- a total of $21 million. The corporation shut down its South Bend, Ind., tennis shoe operations. Then it laid off 1,400 women. There was government action. The U.S. Labor Department moved in. If it wins in federal court on charges that the women should have been given transfer and seniority rights, the fine could be awesome.

"We also filed on Honeywell," says a top Labor Department official. "Although this is on just one small part of one of their plants, we believe we can get back pay of some $4 million on the same types of charges. The Teamsters are involved. There the women weren't allowed into packing. Yes, large sums of money are involved. Even if not many women workers are affected."

To get out from under accusations of co-discrimination some unions themselves are beginning to bring legal action for the minorities and women against the companies. So there's a crossfire. Certainly there will be tough collective bargaining on this issue next time around.

This high-ranking government official added that the heavy damage back-pay suits will come when the female population swings into action. Actually this could prove costlier to the companies and union defendants than the ethnic minority campaigns. For some time now, many firms have had affirmative action plans for blacks and Hispanics. But not for women workers. Female upgrading is relatively new. And the ladies' anger is just being felt on the industrial front.

And they, along with the ethnic workers, have an ally in the members of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. It unleashed a bitter report on May 11, 1976. The document was blown into obscurity by the vortex of primaries and the national election. But the small print has been carefully read by labor leaders and their counsels, now miniature bar associations.

The commission rocked the building and construction trades and the Teamsters with angry charges of job discrimination. Other industries and unions were mentioned. But the bricks were thrown at the hard-hat unions, which include the Teamsters.

These are the "referral unions," virtually all of which operate hiring halls, keep their membership lists tight and screen apprentices. All this was blasted by the commission. Further, it demanded that the Interstate Commerce Commission revoke the licenses of those truck fleet operators (big and small) who don't conform with the EEOC and the commission and the Labor Department's standards of equal employment. There must be "goals and timetables" for the hiring of minority and female workers, it said.

"Contractors should be expected to hire in conformity with their affirmative action plans, without regard to union cooperation or conflict between such plans and obligations under collective bargaining agreements," said the commission.

And the commission wants female and minority representation incresased in the national building trades' and teamsters' officialdom.

Thus, many national labor chiefs aren't laughing boys these days – what with the assault on their treasuries, seniority systems and leadership ranks. As one of them said the other day, "We might as well buy ourselves an American Bar Assn."

P.S. TO THE NEWS

LAWSUIT ON PANAMA

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

The AFL-CIO labor union in the Panama Canal Zone recently sued Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Special Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and President Ford in the U.S. Federal Court in Panama. This suit seeks to enjoin the Kissinger-Bunker negotiations for a new treaty with Panama which would surrender our ownership and control of the canal.

The Kissinger-Bunker negotiations have been conducted with the unelected dictator of Panama, Gen. Omar Torrijos, who permits only one political party to operate, namely, the Communist Party.

He frequently visits and praises the chief Communist spokesman in the Carribean, dictator of Cuba for the last 18 years and recent would-be conqueror of Angola, Fidel Castro.

The Kissinger-Bunker negotiating team has overlooked the fact that the United States owns the canal "in perpetuity." Before Congress would appropriate the hundreds of millions of dollars needed to buy the land inside the 40-mile-long Canal Zone and to build the canal, Congress required a treaty in which Panama conveyed the Canal Zone to the United States.

In 1903 when the Panamanian officials were trying to persuade the United States to buy the Canal Zone and build the canal there, strong arguments were made to build our canal in Nicaragua, where we could take advantage of the deep waters of Lake Nicaragua and a location closer to the United States.

To help persuade the United States to choose Panama rather than Nicaragua, the Panamanian representative proposed a treaty which in five places used the words in perpetuity to describe the U.S. title to the Canal Zone.

In 1907 and before the canal was built, a suit reached the U.S. Supreme Court seeking to enjoin the secretary of the Treasury from paying funds for the construction of the canal on the theory that the United States did not have good title. In this case of Wilson vs. Shaw, a unanimous Supreme Court quoted all the rights granted by the treaty in perpetuity and decided: "It is hypercritical to contend that the title of the United States is imperfect, and that the territory described does not belong to this nation because of the omission of some of the technical terms used in ordinary conveyances of real estate."

In 1971 in the case of Roach vs. United States, the U.S. Court of Appeals reviewed our treaties with Panama and unanimously stated: "The Canal Zone is an unincorporated territory of the United States."

There would be no legal or other basis for Kissinger's and Bunker's offering to surrender our canal even to some heroic figure such as Simon Bolivar, the liberator of South America. Their offer to give our canal to the pro-Communist dictator of Panama is an incredible folly. Encouraged by the weakness of our negotiators, dictator Torrijos recently threatened guerrilla warfare unless the United States signs a new treaty granting him ownership of the canal.

The eight-year dictatorship of Torrijos now requires 35 cents of every tax dollar to finance its large debt of $1.2 billion.

Torrijos is afraid that his dictatorship will collapse unless he can persuade the United States to agree to give him the canal by 1977.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Backstage at Ford White House

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The nation watched the poignant scene in the White House as Betty Ford, her chin high, read the concession telegram her husband was too hoarse to read. But even more touching were the scenes that the public never saw.

Before President Ford faced the TV cameras to concede his defeat, he gathered his family in the oval office. Only a few intimates were allowed inside. They have described the scene for us. The President, exhausted and voiceless after 12 days of the most arduous campaigning any president had ever endured, tried to bolster his family's spirits. Like the quarterback of a defeated but undisgraced team, he spoke quiet words of encouragement. The hoarse whisper made the words all the more heart-wrenching.

Sons Steve, Jack and Michael tried not to show their hurt. Michael's wife, Jayne, also managed to keep her composure. The First Lady had an air of pride, without defiance. Only daughter Susan seemed inconsolable. She couldn't hold back the tears. She turned away, perhaps to hide the tears from her father, and gazed out the window at the chilly autumn day. She continued to weep, without sobbing.

Betty Ford began reading the concession telegram softly to herself. The others hushed to listen. Then they filed into the room where the cameras were waiting.

As the nation watched, the President explained that his voice was too strained for him to speak. His wife took over. "The President asked me to tell you," she began, "that he telephoned president-elect Carter a short time ago and congratulated him on his victory .... "

Once it was done, the family separated. Ford stepped into the crowd, mouthing silent hellos. Then he disappeared into the oval office, alone except for his appointments secretary, Terry O'Donnell, and photographer-friend David Kennerly.

Inside, he threw a strong arm around O'Donnell's shoulders. Another man might have spoken of his own pain of defeat or, at least, might have asked how the TV performance looked.

But Gerald Ford apologized to his young aide. "I see you so often," said the President, "and I still don't get a chance to thank you for the great help you've been to me."

Suddenly, the tough O'Donnell's eyes were afloat.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" pressed the President. "If there is, let me know."

Kennerly, tears streaming down his own cheeks, walked from the room. O'Donnell struggled to control his emotions, so he could tell the older man what he had meant to them all. The aide spoke of the President's courage and humor, of the miracle comeback against the odds. O'Donnell started to add that he had never seen such manliness and dignity under fire.

But the words choked in his throat; he broke down. The President cut him off. "We've got a lot to be proud of," he whispered. Then he smiled and growled through his frog's throat: "Come on, keep your chin up!"

O'Donnell, the tears now in flood stage, left the office. And the President of the United States, lips tight, turned to the papers on his desk.

Footnote: Later, the President met informally with a few top aides. It was a relaxed session. But before it was over, he reminded them: "I am still President until January 20." He asked them, therefore, to continue their duties without letdown.

WATCH ON WASTE: The six members of the International Trade Commission are supposed to advise the President and the Congress on tariff matters. They appear to spend most of their time, however, in the pursuit of unique and ingenious ways to waste the taxpayer's money.

Recently, for example, the ITC discovered a budget surplus of $20,000. Instead of returning the funds to the Treasury, the ITC went on a shopping spree for new office furniture.

Earlier this year, the ITC ordered up $5,000 worth of official Commission flags. Ten of the handsome, hand-woven banners were delivered to Commission offices, along with decorative official ITC seals.

Only one meagre voice, that of Commissioner Daniel Minchew, was raised in protest. "Since I was able to perform my duties for eighteen months without the benefit of a Commission flag and seal in my office," fumed Minchew in a memo to his colleagues, "I can manage now without them."

Minchew may have spoken like a government servant should, but he, too, has partaken generously of public funds. He once spent $115.50 on a junket to Georgia for the opening of a federal law enforcement center. The expenses were legitimate, he told us, because he "mentioned the Commission in a speech" he delivered while there.

Minchew is not the only culprit, nor the worst. Another Commissioner, former Rep. Cathy May Bedell, R.-Wash., apparently thinks she is still entitled to the perquisites of a lawmaker.

She frequently flies first class, despite government regulations that frown on it. She has taken several trips to her home state of Washington, ostensibly to make speeches, pick up trophies and once to participate in an "asparagus investigation."

On one trip to Los Angeles, Bedell holed up in a posh hotel, attended some "hearings on plant hangers," then submitted a request that her allowable expenses be increased to cover the high cost of her hostelry.

Meanwhile, according to Rep. John Moss, D.-Calif., who is investigating the Commission, the ITC is so immersed in partisan politics that it is unable to perform its basic mission.

Footnote: An ITC spokesman argued that the flags and seals "added dignity" to Commission proceedings. Commissioner Bedell told us she flies first class only when "necessary."

'HOUSE' CLEANING FOR EXTRACURRICULAR PAYOFFS?

The major payoff for members of the House of Representatives is in the "perks" --the free airplane rides, hotel rooms, special entertainment, honorariums, inside information on money-making opportunities and a variety of assorted services-- all from friendly people who hope the Congressman will vote the right way.

There are no reliable figures available but it is likely from studies I've seen that perhaps a fifth to a fourth of our Representatives take advantage of these extracurricular payoffs. With clear conscience, of course.

There was much talk on Capitol Hill after Watergate of a house cleaning. That talk withered.

The Wayne Hays (D- Ohio) scandal revived the talk with a vengeance. There was enough sex in the story to focus national attention on what Congressmen were doing with tax money. But it appears that this matter may well end, too, with the demotion of Hays, partial emasculation of the Administration Committee and a rechanneling of the route by which expense account funds reach Congressmen. For all the excitement over the Hays- Ray affair, this was peanuts compared with the influence peddling that determines how hundreds of millions, sometimes billions of tax dollars are spent.

There was hope for a time that the combination of Watergate and Hays- Ray might coerce Congress to pass some sort of meaningful bill to make public gifts of value to legislators by lobbyists; and a companion bill to require legislators to report special favors received--

Now it appears that one way or another, both of these bills may be stalled permanently in the House.

Surveys indicate that everyone-- almost-- is in favor of disclosure.

Then comes a push to introduce amendments which can emasculate disclosure bills past all understanding.

It has been customary to describe opposition to lobbying disclosure bills as coming from big business-- and only big business. In matter of fact, Ralph Nader's organization, The Public Citizen, the AFL-CIO, as well as the Chamber of Commerce and a myriad of liberal organizations, conservative and middle of the road, pro- business, anti-business and the rest, all have been in the forefront of the fight against full, detailed disclosure of where lobbying funds come from and where they go.

All wave the flag, except where their own organization is concerned. And all have silent cooperation from a wide range of Congressmen.

As one man working to push the law through put it: "It's hard to tell the white hats from the black hats."

But the battle is not being fought on the House floor but rather in committee, where the maneuvering is fast and shifty. A seemingly innocuous amendment is offered here and another one there which, in analysis, would gut the proposals. This means more delays for reconsideration and new maneuvering.

The prospect is that the maneuvering will go on until adjournment. Then the fight will be over for this Congress. By next year, the Hays affair will have gathered dust. Members of the House will be peacefully able to pass cosmetic bills to impress their constituents.

THE IDEOLOGICAL COUNTER ATTACK OF WORLD WAR III

Although Ronald Reagan has been the only candidate for the presidential nomination that has pointed to this problem, Alexander Solzhenitsyn has warned us that World War III has begun in the ideological sense-- and that we in the free world are losing it. In a BBC television broadcast he declared: "Freedom has been lost in Laos, China, Angola. Tyrants, bandits, puppets have come to power and pragmatic (Western) philosophy says: that doesn't matter, we have to recognize them. But freedom is indivisible, and one has to take a moral attitude towards it. You Western people, you simply cannot grasp the power of Soviet propaganda; today you remain 'British imperialists' who wish to strangle the whole earth."

Solzhenitsyn then described how detente was being used as a weapon against the West in exploiting the so- called "Spirit of Helsinki." He warned that the Soviet propaganda machine could change its whole posture within one morning, and that the population were prepare for this by their Communist overlords.

The impact upon many of the viewers in Britain has been most encouraging, and it prompted former Labor Foreign Minister, Lord George Brown, to resign from the Labor Party as his personal gesture against the drift towards a Marxist tyranny. This stirred American television companies to screen the Solzhenitsyn interview where it is reported to have made an impact in Washington.

In a trans- atlantic discussion about the program, Dr. Arthur Schlesinger confirmed that the illusion in the West that detente meant "live and let live" had faded in the face of the reality, that there was no detente in the ideological war as far as the Soviets were concerned.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey admitted that the United States "had little or no African policy." He "would hope that the world, and particularly the Soviets would understand that the United States is not a weakling." As former British Prime Minister Edward Heath pointed out the Soviets had correctly assessed that the U.S. Congress would prevent the President from doing anything about Soviet- backed Cuban mercenaries in Angola.

As Intelligence Digest noted some time ago, there are encouraging signs of a re-awakening in the West, but we have a long way to go yet. The Communists have advanced more in the last twelve months that any any time since the end of World War II, and they have not been halted yet. Secretary Kissinger is now alarmed about the spread of Marxism, particularly in Europe.

Meanwhile there is the danger of the enemy within.

HIGH SCHOOL PROSTITUTES

PROSTITUTION IS OFTEN spoken of a victimless crime, one in which both parties consent to the act without doing injury to anyone else, a matter of commerce which ruffles Puritan feathers because it happens to be sexual.

Under that argument, it becomes a noncrime no matter what the law says. But the argument pales when you get down to specifics as reporter Lynn Norment of The Commercial Appeal did in a story Tuesday.

She documented something which has been common knowledge for years, that some high school girls have become prostitutes. Are they not victims, if only of their own ignorance?

By accepting the idea that sex is a fit commodity to be bartered in exchange for spending money and clothes, they surrender that most attractive quality of youth, innocence.

Most of them all but give that innocence away. A pimp with a big car and loud clothes takes it and sells the illusion remaining. It's a sordid trade.

Prostitution is one of those subjects sociologists can study beyond the financial limits set by any grant. The conclusions they reach are no more instructive, and not much more accurate, than those offered by those who depend more on intuition. Prostitution is a grubby business which preys on young girls. It is difficult to control, perhaps impossible to stop.

But the effort should be made and it should be made particularly in the schools. School counselors and teachers must warn against it and explain the grim consequences. Pimps should be a continual target of police.

There is not enough cynic in us to accept some of the realities of modern society, and high school prostitution is one.

Unions Going Bankrupt?

Female, Ethnic, Gov't. anti-job discrimination actions hitting labor constantly with heavy fines

WASHINGTON — You can believe it. Many national labor leaders, besieged by unofficial and government civil rights and equal employment opportunity agencies, are wondering if it's all worthwhile; whether the courts will fine their local and national unions into bankruptcy and whether they can hold their organizations together under the assaults of minority and women's groups.

Anti-discrimination in employment suits are hitting the unions as well as the employers, like enfilading fire in Lebanon's hills. And the post-election "new spirit" isn't exactly soothing the nerves of harassed labor chiefs. Already, federal court equal employment violation fines are heavy. Already, the escalating court dockets are planet-high.

Already, national unions' treasuries, many of them big ones, are so much in the red, dues have had to be raised. Yet they can easily be bankrupt because between 30 and 40 per cent of the back pay and damage awards by the federal courts to ethnic and female litigants hit the unions as well as the "companies."

For example, while down in San Antonio, Tex., during election campaign coverage, I ran into a court action brought by 10 blacks and Hispanics against Braniff Airways, Inc. They charged violation of affirmative action and equal employment rights. The plaintiffs claimed they were discriminated against because they were black and Spanish-surnamed American employes and because of race and national origin.

Co-defendants with Braniff were the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM) and the Teamsters (IBT). The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission joined in the action against the airline and the unions. Last month a decree was filed in the U.S. District Court in San Antonio -- granting more than $1 million to the alleged victims of bias.

This must be paid by the airline and the two unions. Note now that if the locals can't get up the money for back pay and promotion to more lucrative jobs, which the accusers say they were denied, then the IAM and the IBT national offices must come to the rescue of their locals. Note, too -- there are over 1,900 IAM lodges and some 800 Teamsters locals.

Any sudden wave of such successful court actions could break the national unions' treasuries, big as these organizations are. An average of some 10 such court decisions and decrees a year runs upward of a million dollars. Not too long ago, the United Steelworkers union was hit for $5 million on similar charges.

Most famous now in professional circles is the Uniroyal case which could cost the company -- and in an intricate fashion, says a high government official -- a total of $21 million. The corporation shut down its South Bend, Ind., tennis shoe operations. Then it laid off 1,400 women. There was government action. The U.S. Labor Department moved in. If it wins in federal court on charges that the women should have been given transfer and seniority rights, the fine could be awesome.

"We also filed on Honeywell," says a top Labor Department official. "Although this is on just one small part of one of their plants, we believe we can get back pay of some $4 million on the same types of charges. The Teamsters are involved. There the women weren't allowed into packing. Yes, large sums of money are involved. Even if not many women workers are affected."

To get out from under accusations of co-discrimination some unions themselves are beginning to bring legal action for the minorities and women against the companies. So there's a crossfire. Certainly there will be tough collective bargaining on this issue next time around.

This high-ranking government official added that the heavy damage back-pay suits will come when the female population swings into action. Actually this could prove costlier to the companies and union defendants than the ethnic minority campaigns. For some time now, many firms have had affirmative action plans for blacks and Hispanics. But not for women workers. Female upgrading is relatively new. And the ladies' anger is just being felt on the industrial front.

And they, along with the ethnic workers, have an ally in the members of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. It unleashed a bitter report on May 11, 1976. The document was blown into obscurity by the vortex of primaries and the national election. But the small print has been carefully read by labor leaders and their counsels, now miniature bar associations.

The commission rocked the building and construction trades and the Teamsters with angry charges of job discrimination. Other industries and unions were mentioned. But the bricks were thrown at the hard-hat unions, which include the Teamsters.

These are the "referral unions," virtually all of which operate hiring halls, keep their membership lists tight and screen apprentices. All this was blasted by the commission. Further, it demanded that the Interstate Commerce Commission revoke the licenses of those truck fleet operators (big and small) who don't conform with the EEOC and the commission and the Labor Department's standards of equal employment. There must be "goals and timetables" for the hiring of minority and female workers, it said.

"Contractors should be expected to hire in conformity with their affirmative action plans, without regard to union cooperation or conflict between such plans and obligations under collective bargaining agreements," said the commission.

And the commission wants female and minority representation increased in the national building trades' and teamsters' officialdom.

Thus, many national labor chiefs aren't laughing boys these days -- what with the assault on their treasuries, seniority systems and leadership ranks. As one of them said the other day, "We might as well buy ourselves an American Bar Assn."

P.S. TO THE NEWS

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

The AFL-CIO labor union in the Panama Canal Zone recently sued Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Special Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and President Ford in the U.S. Federal Court in Panama. This suit seeks to enjoin the Kissinger-Bunker negotiations for a new treaty with Panama which would surrender our ownership and control of the canal.

The Kissinger-Bunker negotiations have been conducted with the unelected dictator of Panama, Gen. Omar Torrijos, who permits only one political party to operate, namely, the Communist Party.

He frequently visits and praises the chief Communist spokesman in the Carribean, dictator of Cuba for the last 18 years and recent would-be conqueror of Angola, Fidel Castro.

The Kissinger-Bunker negotiating team has overlooked the fact that the United States owns the canal "in perpetuity." Before Congress would appropriate the hundreds of millions of dollars needed to buy the land inside the 40-mile-long Canal Zone and to build the canal, Congress required a treaty in which Panama conveyed the Canal Zone to the United States.

In 1903 when the Panamanian officials were trying to persuade the United States to buy the Canal Zone and build the canal there, strong arguments were made to build our canal in Nicaragua, where we could take advantage of the deep waters of Lake Nicaragua and a location closer to the United States.

To help persuade the United States to choose Panama rather than Nicaragua, the Panamanian representative proposed a treaty which in five places used the words in perpetuity to describe the U.S. title to the Canal Zone.

In 1907 and before the canal was built, a suit reached the U.S. Supreme Court seeking to enjoin the secretary of the Treasury from paying funds for the construction of the canal on the theory that the United States did not have good title. In this case of Wilson vs. Shaw, a unanimous Supreme Court quoted all the rights granted by the treaty in perpetuity and decided: "It is hypercritical to contend that the title of the United States is imperfect, and that the territory described does not belong to this nation because of the omission of some of the technical terms used in ordinary conveyances of real estate."

In 1971 in the case of Roach vs. United States, the U.S. Court of Appeals reviewed our treaties with Panama and unanimously stated: "The Canal Zone is an unincorporated territory of the United States."

There would be no legal or other basis for Kissinger's and Bunker's offering to surrender our canal even to some heroic figure such as Simon Bolivar, the liberator of South America. Their offer to give our canal to the pro-Communist dictator of Panama is an incredible folly. Encouraged by the weakness of our negotiators, dictator Torrijos recently threatened guerrilla warfare unless the United States signs a new treaty granting him ownership of the canal.

The eight-year dictatorship of Torrijos now requires 35 cents of every tax dollar to finance its large debt of $1.2 billion.

Torrijos is afraid that his dictatorship will collapse unless he can persuade the United States to agree to give him the canal by 1977.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Backstage at Ford White House

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The nation watched the poignant scene in the White House as Betty Ford, her chin high, read the concession telegram her husband was too hoarse to read. But even more touching were the scenes that the public never saw.

Before President Ford faced the TV cameras to concede his defeat, he gathered his family in the oval office. Only a few intimates were allowed inside. They have described the scene for us. The President, exhausted and voiceless after 12 days of the most arduous campaigning any president had ever endured, tried to bolster his family's spirits. Like the quarterback of a defeated but undisgraced team, he spoke quiet words of encouragement. The hoarse whisper made the words all the more heart-wrenching.

Sons Steve, Jack and Michael tried not to show their hurt. Michael's wife, Jayne, also managed to keep her composure. The First Lady had an air of pride, without defiance. Only daughter Susan seemed inconsolable. She couldn't hold back the tears. She turned away, perhaps to hide the tears from her father, and gazed out the window at the chilly autumn day. She continued to weep, without sobbing.

Betty Ford began reading the concession telegram softly to herself. The others hushed to listen. Then they filed into the room where the cameras were waiting.

As the nation watched, the President explained that his voice was too strained for him to speak. His wife took over. "The President asked me to tell you," she began, "that he telephoned president-elect Carter a short time ago and congratulated him on his victory ... "

Once it was done, the family separated. Ford stepped into the crowd, mouthing silent hellos. Then he disappeared into the oval office, alone except for his appointments secretary, Terry O'Donnell, and photographer-friend David Kennerly.

Inside, he threw a strong arm around O'Donnell's shoulders. Another man might have spoken of his own pain of defeat or, at least, might have asked how the TV performance looked.

But Gerald Ford apologized to his young aide. "I see you so often," said the President, "and I still don't get a chance to thank you for the great help you've been to me."

Suddenly, the tough O'Donnell's eyes were afloat.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" pressed the President. "If there is, let me know."

Kennerly, tears streaming down his own cheeks, walked from the room. O'Donnell struggled to control his emotions, so he could tell the older man what he had meant to them all. The aide spoke of the President's courage and humor, of the miracle comeback against the odds. O'Donnell started to add that he had never seen such manliness and dignity under fire.

But the words choked in his throat; he broke down. The President cut him off. "We've got a lot to be proud of," he whispered. Then he smiled and growled through his frog's throat: "Come on, keep your chin up."

O'Donnell, the tears now in flood stage, left the office. And the President of the United States, lips tight, turned to the papers on his desk.

Footnote: Later, the President met informally with a few top aides. It was a relaxed session. But before it was over, he reminded them: "I am still President until January 20." He asked them, therefore, to continue their duties without letdown.

WATCH ON WASTE: The six members of the International Trade Commission are supposed to advise the President and the Congress on tariff matters. They appear to spend most of their time, however, in the pursuit of unique and ingenious ways to waste the taxpayer's money.

Recently, for example, the ITC discovered a budget surplus of $20,000. Instead of returning the funds to the Treasury, the ITC went on a shopping spree for new office furniture.

Earlier this year, the ITC ordered up $5,000 worth of official Commission flags. Ten of the handsome, hand-woven banners were delivered to Commission offices, along with decorative official ITC seals.

Only one meagre voice, that of Commissioner Daniel Minchew, was raised in protest. "Since I was able to perform my duties for eighteen months without the benefit of a Commission flag and seal in my office," fumed Minchew in a memo to his colleagues, "I can manage now without them."

Minchew may have spoken like a government servant should, but he, too, has partaken generously of public funds. He once spent $115.50 on a junket to Georgia for the opening of a federal law enforcement center. The expenses were legitimate, he told us, because he "mentioned the Commission in a speech" he delivered while there.

Minchew is not the only culprit, nor the worst. Another Commissioner, former Rep. Cathy May Bedell, R.-Wash., apparently thinks she is still entitled to the perquisites of a lawmaker.

She frequently flies first class, despite government regulations that frown on it. She has taken several trips to her home state of Washington, ostensibly to make speeches, pick up trophies and once to participate in an "asparagus investigation."

On one trip to Los Angeles, Bedell holed up in a posh hotel, attended some "hearings on plant hangers," then submitted a request that her allowable expenses be increased to cover the high cost of her hostelry.

Meanwhile, according to Rep. John Moss, D.-Calif., who is investigating the Commission, the ITC is so immersed in partisan politics that it is unable to perform its basic mission.

Footnote: An ITC spokesman argued that the flags and seals "added dignity" to Commission proceedings. Commissioner Bedell told us she flies first class only when "necessary."

Retired teachers form district group

Members of the Southeast Missouri District of Retired Teachers and their guests met Tuesday at the El Capri Restaurant for an organizational meeting. Presiding over the meeting was Melvin Gatley, president of Southeast Missouri District Teachers Association and principal of Schultz Middle School at Cape Girardeau.

Electa O'Hara discussed procedures and qualifications for voting. Katheryne Lohr talked about the advantages of a district organization for retired teachers. She was elected president of the new group. She is president of the SeMo Unit of Retired Teachers.

Mrs. Glenda Conrad of the SeMo Unit was elected secretary. Three officers- at-large were also chosen to serve. They were Delmer Cobble of Cape County, Jeanette Boehm of Perry County and Paul Snider of Stoddard County.

These officers are responsible for drawing up the Constitution and by- laws to be presented during the Southeast Missouri Teachers District annual meeting in March.

The newly organized group will be known as the Retired Teachers Department of the Southeast District Teachers Association of the Missouri State Teachers Association.

Tips on moving when taking or transferring jobs

Chicago (NFS) — Before you take a new job with a company that may transfer you later on, Employee Transfer Corporation, Chicago, suggests you ask these questions:

1. How much time will I get to hunt for a new house?

2. Will the company pay for my house-hunting expenses and for my wife if I want to bring her along?

3. WILL THE company pay for moving my household goods?

4. Who pays for packing and unpacking?

5. Do I get a mileage or shipping allowance for my car when I move?

6. WILL THE company pay for travel, food, and lodging when I move my family?

7. If I have to live in temporary quarters, will the company pay and for how long?

8. Will the company arrange to buy my house from me and give me the equity I need to buy a new one, and will it help me find a new home?

"IF A COMPANY wants the employee to be happy and productive, it will arrange to take most of these worries off his hands," Employee Transfer Corporation spokesmen said.

If you've had poor luck starting plants from cuttings, try some perlite. Pour perlite in a container, wet it and insert your cuttings. Cover the container with clear plastic wrap and wait for the roots to form—it's as simple as that. Perlite is a white, sterile, lightweight volcanic material readily available under various brand names at nurseries, supermarkets and hardware stores everywhere.

Accident victim, fetus, dies

DENVER (AP) — A pregnant woman, the subject of an unusual medical debate concerning the 15-week-old fetus she carried, is dead.

Doctors at Colorado General Hospital used life support machinery for more than 48 hours after 29-year-old Linda Culbertson was critically injured in an automobile accident on Monday.

While the machinery kept Mrs. Culbertson technically alive, doctors pondered the ethical, legal and medical questions of trying to keep her alive in the hope they could some day deliver her baby.

When they decided their effort had no chance for success, they made plans to terminate the extraordinary life support. Before they could do so, Mrs. Culbertson's heartbeat, and that of the fetus, stopped.

"It was the judgment of our medical staff that nothing could be done to preserve a viable fetus," hospital spokesman Eric Munson said after a team of surgeons, obstetricians and pediatricians had reached their decision.

The decision to terminate the life-saving effort was reached with the consent of the woman's husband, Vaughn. The couple's only child, Shannon, 6 months, suffered a fractured skull in the auto accident and was listed in good condition today by a hospital spokesman.

Family members have declined to discuss the case publicly.

Doctors had said the fetus could not be removed from the women's body until the 20th week of gestation and until it reached a weight of 500 grams, or just over a pound.

The American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology in Chicago told hospital officials the case was without precedent.

Mysterious mold on basement carpet

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — We have bought a two-year-old house and the basement carpet has always felt damp and cold to the touch. It was closed up for about a week. One day I found spots that appeared to be mold on the carpet. I easily wiped this off, but two days later it had reappeared. My neighbor tells me they use a de-humidifier. Do you think one would help this dampness? How do I get rid of the mold and the odor? Do you think it will ruin the carpet? I am thinking particularly of the back of the carpet since I do not know what type backing it has. It is wall to wall. I enjoy the column and my husband does, too. Every now and then he cuts out a Polly's Pointer and puts it on the bulletin board. — PEGGY C.

DEAR PEGGY — I am afraid if you only treat the top of the carpet, this is only going to be a stop gap. There must be something causing this dampness that should be remedied. It sounds like a construction problem that you should discuss with the builder of the house. You may have to remove the carpet to find the real trouble, and then start to correct it. If the builder is not available talk to the former owner of the house and see if they were plagued by the same trouble.

A de-humidifier should help keep the dampness out AFTER you have solved the big problem. If there is no necessity for doing something to the floor itself, you will certainly have to dry out the air. You could turn the furnace on until all is dry. Keep the basement windows open on dry, sunny, breezy days. However, no matter what you do on the surface there is always going to be a nagging doubt as to what is going on underneath that carpet, since the back must be damp. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Sometime ago Katherine wrote about an opaque film inside her crystal decanters. As an ex-waitress I want to pass on a way to clean them. Put three tablespoons regular salt, the juice of one lemon and one half teaspoon water in a decanter. Swish around with the help of a bottle brush or dish mop. Keep turning the bottle in a circular motion for about three minutes, as you do this. The glass should sparkle. — Mrs. L.F.

Weddings to come

Hollaway-Woods

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hollaway, 611 Maple St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Diann, to Tommy Earl Woods Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy E. Woods Sr. of Bertrand Route One.

Miss Hollaway is a 1972 graduate of Sikeston High School and will graduate from Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau in December. She is a physical education major and is currently doing her student teaching at East Prairie Junior High School. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority and the Golden Eagles Marching Band.

Woods is a 1969 graduate of Charleston High School and attended Three Rivers Community College at Poplar Bluff and SeMo University.

Lattice work has staked new fashion claim indoors

Chicago (NFS) — With today's growing emphasis on both nostalgia and the natural look in decorating, garden-variety lattice has staked a new fashion claim indoors. While its very simplicity makes it happily at home on the contemporary scene, it offers a definite link with the past — the best of both worlds, so to speak.

Now it's easy to give any room a garden-fresh outlook with the decorative wall accessories introduced in a new Lattice collection by Burwood Products Company, Traverse City, Mich. Among them are battery clocks in two different styles, a generously scaled mirror, and a pair of colorful garden prints, all in a choice of crisp white or sunny yellow frames.

Ann Landers

Beating children not advised

Dear Ann Landers: As a clinical psychologist I see at least four juvenile delinquents in my office every week. I have yet to run into a male juvenile delinquent who wasn't hit with a fist, board, belt or a piece of rope.

Sensitive, non-physical parents don't produce hell-raisers. The typical parent of a delinquent child is not the indulgent, permissive person the news media would have us believe. He is rigid, cold, authoritarian, non-trusting, restrictive, physically punitive and was whipped or beat up by his own parents.

If my colleagues (and you, Ann Landers) could persuade American parents to stop hitting their children the crime rate would drop immediately.

I have repeatedly suggested that all belt manufacturers stamp on every belt the warning, "CAUTION: THE USE OF THIS IMPLEMENT ON YOUR CHILD IS DANGEROUS TO HIS MENTAL HEALTH AND YOUR FUTURE WELL-BEING." -- R.S.W., Ph. D., Clinical Psychology

Dear R.S.W.: I, too, am opposed to hitting children with belts, fists, boards and pieces of rope, but the palm of the hand, applied to the seat of the problem, can be a good teaching device for small children who don't respond to the spoken word.

Your idea for belt manufacturers is a clever gimmick, but do you honestly believe that a parent who is angry enough to hit a child would take time to read the message?

Dear Ann Landers: Your stand on homosexuality interests me. Published figures show that one out of six babies is born with an extra gene which is characteristic of homosexuals. I realize this fact is not accepted by many doctors but in time it will be.

Your concept that homosexuals suffer from "a personality disorder" is nonsense. Their problem is purely biological -- something they are born with. Psychiatry is a waste of time.

You will recall there was a man named Jesus. He enjoyed a most unusual lifestyle with those twelve men, his disciples. Theirs was essentially the lifestyle of the homosexual as we know it today. Do you suppose Jesus was crucified because he was a homosexual?-- I Am Not Kidding

Dear Ann: Regarding the woman whose husband's job keeps him away from home six nights at a time: She wondered if it was possible for a man to go without sex that long.

My problem is somewhat similar and I hope you will print it because I'm sure others who are in my spot need an answer, too.

I am married to a trucker. Three of his so-called friends have called me within the last year to offer a little loving in his absence. They don't seem to think I can go without sex for a week at a time.

Retired teachers form district group

Members of the Southeast Missouri District of Retired Teachers and their guests met Tuesday at the El Capri Restaurant for an organizational meeting. Presiding over the meeting was Melvin Gatley, president of Southeast Missouri District Teachers Association and principal of Schultz Middle School at Cape Girardeau.

Electa O'Hara discussed procedures and qualifications for voting. Katheryne Lohr talked about the advantages of a district organization for retired teachers. She was elected president of the new group. She is president of the SeMo Unit of Retired Teachers.

Mrs. Glenda Conrad of the SeMo Unit was elected secretary. Three officers- at-large were also chosen to serve. They were Delmer Cobble of Cape County, Jeanette Boehm of Perry County and Paul Snider of Stoddard County.

These officers are responsible for drawing up the Constitution and by- laws to be presented during the Southeast Missouri Teachers District annual meeting in March.

The newly organized group will be known as the Retired Teachers Department of the Southeast District Teachers Association of the Missouri State Teachers Association.

Tips on moving when taking or transferring jobs

Chicago (NFS) – Before you take a new job with a company that may transfer you later on, Employee Transfer Corporation, Chicago, suggests you ask these questions:

1. How much time will I get to hunt for a new house?
2. Will the company pay for my house-hunting expenses and for my wife if I want to bring her along?
3. WILL THE company pay for moving my household goods?
4. Who pays for packing and unpacking?
5. Do I get a mileage or shipping allowance for my car when I move?
6. WILL THE company pay for travel, food, and lodging when I move my family?
7. If I have to live in temporary quarters, will the company pay and for how long?
8. Will the company arrange to buy my house from me and give me the equity I need to buy a new one, and will it help me find a new home?

"IF A COMPANY wants the employee to be happy and productive, it will arrange to take most of these worries off his hands," Employee Transfer Corporation spokesmen said.

The tailored look is only one of the many looks to be presented at "A Sneak Preview to Holiday Fashions," a fashion show sponsored by First National Bank tonight at 7 p.m. at the Kingsway Mall. Pat Morgan of Sikeston is one of the models who will represent Jean Allen's. Other stores featured in the fashion show are Jennifer Vest, T. G. & Y, Winchester Station, Sikeston Fabric, J. C. Penney Co., Lancaster's, Graber's, Dimensions, Clothes Closet, Chris' Young World, Britt's, Ben's and Athlete's Foot. Door prizes will be given away and the show is admission free.

If you've had poor luck starting plants from cuttings, try some perlite. Pour perlite in a container, wet it and insert your cuttings. Cover the container with clear plastic wrap and wait for the roots to form—it's as simple as that. Perlite is a white, sterile, lightweight volcanic material readily available under various brand names at nurseries, supermarkets and hardware tores everywhere.

Mysterious mold on basement carpet

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — We have bought a two-year-old house and the basement carpet has always felt damp and cold to the touch. It was closed up for about a week. One day I found spots that appeared to be mold on the carpet. I easily wiped this off, but two days later it had reappeared. My neighbor tells me they use a dehumidifier. Do you think one would help this dampness? How do I get rid of the mold and the odor? Do you think it will ruin the carpet? I am thinking particularly of the back of the carpet since I do not know what type backing it has. It is wall to wall. I enjoy the column and my husband does, too. Every now and then he cuts out a Polly's Pointer and puts it on the bulletin board. — PEGGY C.

DEAR PEGGY — I am afraid if you only treat the top of the carpet, this is only going to be a stop gap. There must be something causing this dampness that should be remedied. It sounds like a construction problem that you should discuss with the builder of the house. You may have to remove the carpet to find the real trouble, and then start to correct it. If the builder is not available talk to the former owner of the house and see if they were plagued by the same trouble.

A de-humidifier should help keep the dampness out AFTER you have solved the big problem. If there is no necessity for doing something to the floor itself, you will certainly have to dry out the air. You could turn the furnace on until all is dry. Keep the basement windows open on dry, sunny, breezy days. However, no matter what you do on the surface there is always going to be a nagging doubt as to what is going on underneath that carpet, since the back must be damp. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Sometime ago Katherine wrote about an opaque film inside her crystal decanters. As an ex-waitress I want to pass on a way to clean them. Put three tablespoons regular salt, the juice of one lemon and one half teaspoon water in a decanter. Swish around with the help of a bottle brush or dish mop. Keep turning the bottle in a circular motion for about three minutes, as you do this. The glass should sparkle. — Mrs. L.F.

Weddings to come

Hollaway-Woods

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hollaway, 611 Maple St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Diann, to Tommy Earl Woods Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy E. Woods Sr. of Bertrand Route One.

Miss Hollaway is a 1972 graduate of Sikeston High School and will graduate from Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau in December. She is a physical education major and is currently doing her student teaching at East Prairie Junior High School. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority and the Golden Eagles Marching Band.

Woods is a 1969 graduate of Charleston High School and attended Three Rivers Community College at Poplar Bluff and SeMo University.

The couple plans a Dec. 26 wedding.

Lattice work has staked new fashion claim indoors

Chicago (NFS) – With today's growing emphasis on both nostalgia and the natural look in decorating, garden-variety lattice has staked a new fashion claim indoors. While its very simplicity makes it happily at home on the contemporary scene, it offers a definite link with the past – the best of both worlds, so to speak.

Now it's easy to give any room a garden-fresh outlook with the decorative wall accessories introduced in a new Lattice collection by Burwood Products Company, Traverse City, Mich. Among them are battery clocks in two different styles, a generously scaled mirror, and a pair of colorful garden prints, all in a choice of crisp white or sunny yellow frames.

Accident victim, fetus, dies

DENVER (AP) — A pregnant woman, the subject of an unusual medical debate concerning the 15-week-old fetus she carried, is dead.

Doctors at Colorado General Hospital used life support machinery for more than 48 hours after 29-year-old Linda Culbertson was critically injured in an automobile accident on Monday.

While the machinery kept Mrs. Culbertson technically alive, doctors pondered the ethical, legal and medical questions of trying to keep her alive in the hope they could some day deliver her baby.

When they decided their effort had no chance for success, they made plans to terminate the extraordinary life support. Before they could do so, Mrs. Culbertson's heartbeat, and that of the fetus, stopped.

"It was the judgment of our medical staff that nothing could be done to preserve a viable fetus," hospital spokesman Eric Munson said after a team of surgeons, obstetricians and pediatricians had reached their decision.

The decision to terminate the life-saving effort was reached with the consent of the woman's husband, Vaughn. The couple's only child, Shannon, 6 months, suffered a fractured skull in the auto accident and was listed in good condition today by a hospital spokesman.

Family members have declined to discuss the case publicly.

Doctors had said the fetus could not be removed from the women's body until the 20th week of gestation and until it reached a weight of 500 grams, or just over a pound.

The American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology in Chicago told hospital officials the case was without precedent.

Ann Landers

Beating children not advised

Dear Ann Landers: As a clinical psychologist I see at least four juvenile delinquents in my office every week. I have yet to run into a male juvenile delinquent who wasn't hit with a fist, board, belt or a piece of rope.

Sensitive, non-physical parents don't produce hell-raisers. The typical parent of a delinquent child is not the indulgent, permissive person the news media would have us believe. He is rigid, cold, authoritarian, non-trusting, restrictive, physically punitive and was whipped or beat up by his own parents.

If my colleagues (and you, Ann Landers) could persuade American parents to stop hitting their children the crime rate would drop immediately.

I have repeatedly suggested that all belt manufacturers stamp on every belt the warning, "CAUTION: THE USE OF THIS IMPLEMENT ON YOUR CHILD IS DANGEROUS TO HIS MENTAL HEALTH AND YOUR FUTURE WELL-BEING." -- R.S.W., Ph. D., Clinical Psychology

Dear R.S.W.: I, too, am opposed to hitting children with belts, fists, boards and pieces of rope, but the palm of the hand, applied to the seat of the problem, can be a good teaching device for small children who don't respond to the spoken word.

Your idea for belt manufacturers is a clever gimmick, but do you honestly believe that a parent who is angry enough to hit a child would take time to read the message?

Dear Ann Landers: Your stand on homosexuality interests me. Published figures show that one out of six babies is born with an extra gene which is characteristic of homosexuals. I realize this fact is not accepted by many doctors but in time it will be.

Your concept that homosexuals suffer from "a personality disorder" is nonsense. Their problem is purely biological -- something they are born with. Psychiatry is a waste of time.

Piercys have golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Gentry Piercy

CHICO, Calif. — Mr. and Mrs. Gentry Piercy were honored recently for their 50th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Jewel Adams of Sun Valley, Nev., was the hostess for the event.

The Piercys were married Sept. 27, 1926, at New Madrid, Mo. Mrs. Piercy was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Connie Bibbs of Matthews, Mo. and attended Matthews schools. They moved to Chico in 1943. Piercy retired from B. Purity's Oil Co. in 1966.

The couple has one son, Lyndle and three grandsons, Randy, Ricky and Greg Piercy. The guest book was attended by Rick Piercy and April Wycoff registered the gifts. An anniversary cake was baked and served by Mrs. Claude Piercy, Piercy's sister- in- law. A great-niece, Sharon Adams, presented a money tree to the couple. The couple and their family were served champagne.

Serving punch were Mrs. Barry Kimbole of Chico, Mrs. Tom Datson of Huntington Park served coffee. Violet Strayer of Columbus, Ohio, served hors d'oeuvres, which she made.

Among the 125 guests were several from out- of- town. They were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strayer of Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Datson of Huntington Park, Mr. and Mrs. Monty Buneger of Novak, Calif., Mrs. Julie Adams and daughters of Sun Valley, Nev., Mr. and Mrs. Claude Piercy of Willows, Glen and Martha (Trail) Roderick and Mrs. Judy Tucker of Oroville, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Robinson of Redding, and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Garozziuk of Corning.

Cake walk at Benton

Parents of Benton Head Start children sponsored a cake walk after their regular monthly meeting Tuesday. They also announced the winner of the ham raffle. The ham was won by Mrs. Margaret Arteme of Benton.

Proceeds from the cake walk and ham raffle will be used for the children in the Head Start program's Christmas activities.

Farm-retail prices blamed for food bill

When the cash register totals the grocery bill, many consumers wonder where their food dollar goes. In explaining food prices economists often refer to farm- retail price spreads.

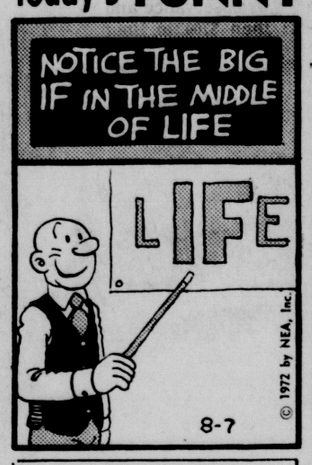

The farm- retail price spread is the difference between what farmers receive for food produced and the price consumers pay. Therefore, it reflects marketing costs which include transportation, processing, wholesaling and finally retailing food.

Most representatives of marketing activities admit to guaranteed profit needed to stay in business but many say profit is limited because of their increased costs. All segments of the food distribution system, except farming, generally can depend on a certain return for their investments. Farmers, on the other hand, have less control of profits since they depend on uncertainties such as the weather to determine how well their business will do.

Food marketing costs have accounted for about 60 cents of each dollar consumers spend for food in recent years. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, the farm retail price spread has widened nearly every year for years. This is because marketing costs such as packaging, materials, fuel and labor wages have increased with inflation.

Farm to retail price spreads are larger, or the cost of marketing is greatest, for foods that have changed the most since leaving the farm. For instance, only half of the price consumers pay for catsup or canned tomatoes goes to the farmer who produced the tomatoes. The rest goes for processing and other marketing activities. Similarly one third of the cost of a loaf of bread goes to pay for milling the wheat, baking, slicing and wrapping the bread.

Hot water dispenser turns on in '77

Chicago (NFS) – The 1977 glamour item for the kitchen will be a built-in instant hot water dispenser that supplies steaming hot 190°F water at the turn of a tap.

It lets you make instant soups, coffee and other fast foods within seconds.

According to officials of the In-Sink-Erator Division, Emerson Electric Co., Racine, Wis., a leading maker of hot water dispensers, the product has been on the market for many years but only recently has begun to surge in popularity.

THE REASON is the rapidly growing assortment of instant foods now available at food stores.

A hot water dispenser can be likened to a tea kettle that's always full of hot water. It can also be used to prepare instant cereals, vegetables, puddings, to thaw frozen food, to warm baby bottles, etc.

LYLE SEPTON, In-Sink-Erator's national service manager, says that the installation is relatively easy.

A copper tube leading from the dispenser storage tank is connected to either the hot or cold water supply line under the kitchen sink with a simple saddle valve. The storage tank is mounted to the wall and a built-in plug is connected to an ordinary wall outlet.

More than 120,000 hot water dispensers will be sold by the industry in 1977, up from 1976.

The product sells for around $90 and is normally available through plumbing contractors and at many hardware stores.

When the Continental Congress resolved on June 22, 1775, to finance the war with the issuance of $2,000,000 in Continental Currency it announced that these bills of credit would be backed by the "Spanish milled dollar." In doing so they adopted a monetary system long known in the New World. The World Almanac notes that this Spanish dollar later was the model for United States currency.

An anniversary cake was baked and served by Mrs. Claude Piercy, Piercy's sister- in- law. A great-niece, Sharon Adams, presented a money tree to the couple. The couple and their family were served champagne.

Serving punch were Mrs. Barry Kimbole of Chico, Mrs. Tom Datson of Huntington Park served coffee. Violet Strayer of Columbus, Ohio, served hors d'oeuvres, which she made.

Among the 125 guests were several from out- of- town. They were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strayer of Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Datson of Huntington Park, Mr. and Mrs. Monty Buneger of Novak, Calif., Mrs. Julie Adams and daughters of Sun Valley, Nev., Mr. and Mrs. Claude Piercy of Willows, Glen and Martha (Trail) Roderick and Mrs. Judy Tucker of Oroville, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Robinson of Redding, and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Garozziuk of Corning.

Cake walk at Benton

Parents of Benton Head Start children sponsored a cake walk after their regular monthly meeting Tuesday. They also announced the winner of the ham raffle. The ham was won by Mrs. Margaret Arteme of Benton.

Proceeds from the cake walk and ham raffle will be used for the children in the Head Start program's Christmas activities.

Don't sniff at a food you think may be moldy. This can send spores directly into the respiratory tract.

Farm-retail prices blamed for food bill

When the cash register totals the grocery bill, many consumers wonder where their food dollar goes. In explaining food prices economists often refer to farm- retail price spreads.

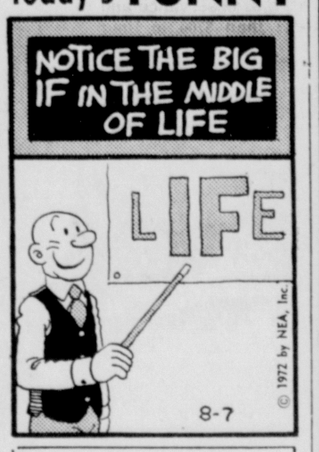

The farm- retail price spread is the difference between what farmers receive for food produced and the price consumers pay. Therefore, it reflects marketing costs which include transportation, processing, wholesaling and finally retailing food.

Most representatives of marketing activities admit to guaranteed profit needed to stay in business but many say profit is limited because of their increased costs. All segments of the food distribution system, except farming, generally can depend on a certain return for their investments. Farmers, on the other hand, have less control of profits since they depend on uncertainties such as the weather to determine how well their business will do.

Food marketing costs have accounted for about 60 cents of each dollar consumers spend for food in recent years. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, the farm retail price spread has widened nearly every year for years. This is because marketing costs such as packaging, materials, fuel and labor wages have increased with inflation.

Farm to retail price spreads are larger, or the cost of marketing is greatest, for foods that have changed the most since leaving the farm. For instance, only half of the price consumers pay for catsup or canned tomatoes goes to the farmer who produced the tomatoes. The rest goes for processing and other marketing activities. Similarly one third of the cost of a loaf of bread goes to pay for milling the wheat, baking, slicing and wrapping the bread.

Hot water dispenser turns on in '77

Chicago (NFS) – The 1977 glamour item for the kitchen will be a built-in instant hot water dispenser that supplies steaming hot 190°F water at the turn of a tap.

It lets you make instant soups, coffee and other fast foods within seconds.

According to officials of the In-Sink-Erator Division, Emerson Electric Co., Racine, Wis., a leading maker of hot water dispensers, the product has been on the market for many years but only recently has begun to surge in popularity.

THE REASON is the rapidly growing assortment of instant foods now available at food stores.

A hot water dispenser can be likened to a tea kettle that's always full of hot water. It can also be used to prepare instant cereals, vegetables, puddings, to thaw frozen food, to warm baby bottles, etc.

LYLE SEPTON, In-Sink-Erator's national service manager, says that the installation is relatively easy.

A copper tube leading from the dispenser storage tank is connected to either the hot or cold water supply line under the kitchen sink with a simple saddle valve. The storage tank is mounted to the wall and a built-in plug is connected to an ordinary wall outlet.

More than 120,000 hot water dispensers will be sold by the industry in 1977, up from 1976.

The product sells for around $90 and is normally available through plumbing contractors and at many hardware stores.

When the Continental Congress resolved on June 22, 1775, to finance the war with the issuance of $2,000,000 in Continental Currency it announced that these bills of credit would be backed by the "Spanish milled dollar." In doing so they adopted a monetary system long known in the New World. The World Almanac notes that this Spanish dollar later was the model for United States currency.

Malden seeks $400,000 in Block Grants

MALDEN — Malden's City Council sifted through results of two public meetings last month and came up with seven categories of improvements which it will submit to the federal government via a Community Development Block Grant application.

Monday night, aldermen voted to seek $400,000 in government money for the police station and jail (150,000); Spooner ville park (30,000); housing assistance ($100,000); sidewalks and ramps ($45,000); downtown planning ($20,000); matching federal aid to urban development funds ($40,000); and storm sewer planning ($15,000).

The meetings were held Oct. 22 and Oct. 29 at the city hall, and local residents were invited to attend and suggest how any block grant money might be utilized.

In another major item of business, the council was informed that as of noon Saturday, Nov. 13, the county dump will be closed. Bill Headley of A-1 Sanitary Service told aldermen "the County Court won't put in a nickel to keep it (the county dump) open."

The dump operator recently asked each community in the county to monthly fund proportional amounts — totaling $980 — to keep the dump open."

Mayor Sparrel Davis says he can see no solution to the problem, other than perhaps adding a garbage pickup fee to Malden residents' electricity bills.

It is possible that Malden may be able to use dumps at Dexter or Bernie. The dumps under discussion would cost the city 75 cents to $1.25 per yard to use, Headley said. Davis suggested that he and Headley travel to Dexter and Bernie soon to check out the possibilities of using dumps at one of those cities.

Planning and Zoning Commission members appeared before the council, with Bill Stuart as spokesman, to see clarification of its relationship with the council.

Stuart said the commission, created in 1972, believes it sometimes works at cross-purposes with aldermen.

Ordinances suggested by the commission and approved by the council are not being enforced, Stuart said, especially zoning ordinances regarding junked automobiles. The commission has mailed warnings to property owners about junked cars, but nothing is being done to enforce the law, he said.

"We want some backing on this," Stuart continued. "We need it and if we can't get it, we're spinning our wheels," stressing that his commission doesn't have enforcement powers. A joint council-commission meeting will be held later this month.

The council approved a motion to notify the chief of police to enforce the junked car ordinance as well as any other ordinance which is being violated.

Ron Wilkerson informed the council that Mrs. Pat Morehead has submitted her resignation from the Recreational Park Commission and that he would like to discuss further appointments with the council in the future.

Stuart, who is also chairman of the Malden Community Betterment Committee, asked Wilkerson about status of the croquet courts at the Industrial Park. Wilkerson said dirt has been hauled in to the courts and that he expects the courts to be finished soon. Stuart told the meeting this is all that is needed to fulfill Malden's requirements for its third "star" under the Missouri Community Betterment five-star program.

Aldermen voted to donate $500 to the local United Fund campaign for use as the United Fund board deems necessary.

Davis presented Malden fireman Jim Garris with a plaque of appreciation "for outstanding work performed during Fire Prevention Week" on behalf of the council and Malden residents. Garris took charge of the local observance and raised more than $700 to finance the drive.

A centennial committee, consisting of Price Douglass, Allen Black, Ballard VanCleve, Nell Beall, Ralph Stropp, Val Mitchell and Jean Howell was approved by the council to guide Malden's observance of its 100th birthday, which will be in April 1978.

Davis suggested that aldermen study copies of a Halloween ordinance which would limit the age of trick-or-treaters as well as the hours they may trick or treat.

Alderman Phil Santie asked why the city has purchased tires from Uniroyal at Kennett rather than from Malden merchants and accused the city of ignoring local businessmen.

Santie said the bidding process "hasn't been handled right," but Davis replied that bids were advertised in the newspaper and no local firms submitted bids ... forcing the city to buy tires and gasoline from out-of-town sources.

Davis said he "still holds to the fact that Santie didn't bid" on gasoline and tires when it had the opportunity.

Santie claimed that out-of-town gasoline dealers should have to pay merchant's tax in Malden, where they deliver.

The discussion ended with aldermen voting to advertise for unleaded gasoline bids "in the normal manner" — in the newspaper, plus on radio station KTCB.

In other business:

—The council accepted Mrs. Morehead's resignation.

—Aldermen approved the erection of three street lights at the Waller Addition park to curtail loitering and carousing in that area. Alderman Floyd Lee said he has observed young people "doing everything they ought not to do" in the area, and that the situation warrants installation of lights.

Christmas parade set for Chaffee on Dec. 11

CHAFFEE — The Chaffee Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce will hold their annual Christmas parade on Dec. 11 at 1:30 p.m.

To date, seven area bands, including Chaffee, have made plans to participate in the Christmas parade.

There will be the following prizes for the outstanding floats in the parade: first place, $75, second place, $50, third place, $25. Any float will be judged during the parade. The Christmas Theme for this year's parade will be "A Charlie Brown Christmas". This theme should be used with all floats, if possible.

Any person with antique cars, trucks, wagons, or persons with horses or whatever are welcome and needed in the parade.

It is hoped by the Jaycees and Chamber, that the people in Chaffee and the surrounding area will do everything in their power to make this Christmas parade the best ever!

Anyone wishing further information concerning the Christmas parade or planned Christmas activities should contact Butch Stidham or Bill Hagan, co-chairmen.

Mormon missionaries are assigned to Sikeston area

Two missionaries for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) are presently working in the Sikeston area. Their names are Elder Edward Mitchell and Elder Alan Lauritsen . Elder Mitchell is from Westminister, Calif., and Elder Lauritsen is from North Salt Lake, Utah.

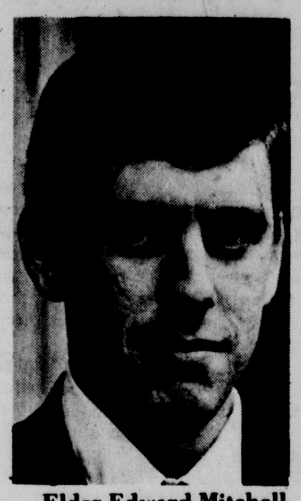

When Male members of the Mormon church reach age 19, they are given an opportunity to serve on full-time missions. Although the church does not obligate them to go, many young men feel it is an honor to be called.

The missions last for two years, and the persons involved delay their private plans until they return. Each individual missionary works prior to leaving, so as to have the funds to support himself during the two years. When necessary, a missionary's family aids in his financial support.

The church missionary program is one of the largest in the world and spreads throughout most parts of the world, with a force of approximately 22,000. During the two years they serve, missionaries teach people about the church so that they may receive the same blessings, from service and obedience, the members feel they now receive.

The church offers many programs to the members. One of these programs is the family home evening program. This program is set up to help keep families closer together in this troubled modern world and family unit is one of the many things the missionaries share with the people they visit.

So, if you happen to see a couple of young men riding through Sikeston and surrounding communities on bicycles, it may well be Mitchell and Lauritsen out seeking to tell people about the church.

Elder Edward Mitchell

Elder Alan Lauritsen

The nearest church of Jesus Christ of latter-day Saints is located at Dexter.

Mitchell, who is 21, has been working in the Sikeston area about two months, while Lauritsen, 20, arrived only last Friday. The missionaries receive their assignments from the church, and the two had not worked together before. Mitchell's previous assignment was in the Bristol, Va., area, while Lauritsen came here from Belle Meade, Tenn., near Nashville.

Mitchell has completed about 14 months of his two-year period as a missionary, and Lauritsen has served 16 months.

Prior to becoming a missionary, Mitchell worked as a drydock crewman at Long Beach (Calif.) Naval Station to save money he would need for the two-year program. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Natalina Mitchell of Westminster, and his father is an electrical superintendent for Flour Corp.

Lauritsen worked in a grocery store before entering mission work. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lauritsen of North Salt Lake, and his father is employed by the Davis County School District.

Program to feed hungry set

A new program called "Feed the Hungry" will be inaugurated Dec. 1 by Green Memorial Church of God in Christ, 218 Dixie St., according to Elder Charlie Green Jr., pastor, who said the church will provide free hot meals for persons 65 years old and over each Wednesday.

The meals will be served from 4 to 6 p.m. in the church's dining room.

In addition to free meals for senior citizens, Elder Green said the program will feed anyone else who is hungry for a small donation.

Clinical program set for pastors

FARMINGTON — The chaplaincy department at Farmington State Hospital has announced plans for a clinical pastoral education program to begin Jan. 3, 1977. This will be an 11-week program concluding March 18. It involves 40 hours per week (8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday) of study, pastoral work on wards, individual conferences, group interaction sessions, etc.

Purpose of the training is to help the clergy sharpen their pastoral skills while providing ministerial services to hospital patients. There will be opportunities for ministers and priests to gain insight into themselves and gain psychiatric knowledge which can be helpful in serving others.

The fee for the course is $20, and the hospital will pay a stipend of $715 (subject to withholding taxes). A few positions remain open for ministers and priests from any church group.

Applications considered may be anyone who is serving a church or parish, regardless of educational background.

Interested persons are requested to contact the Chaplaincy Department, Father Albert Rehme or the Rev. William A. Allen at Farmington State Hospital, Farmington, Mo. 63640.

The Gospel Tones Quartet, a gospel singing group from the Bloomfield area, earned first place Oct. 30 at the Meramec Caverns talent contest. The contest, sponsored by the Lester Family from St. Louis, featured competition among 37 groups from Missouri, Illinois and Texas. The Gospel Tones also appeared in an annual gospel singing event in the caverns the same evening with such well-known groups as The Blackwoods, The Thrasher Brothers, Wendy Bagwell and the Sunlighters, the Singing Goffs and the Lester Family. Members of the Gospel Tones are: Bottom row, from left, Larry Roberts, James Rogers and Doug Snider. Top row, Bryce Hill, Buddy Heaten, Bruce Hill and Mike Brown. Their manager is James Rogers of Essex Route Two.

Calvary to host revival crusade

Calvary Assembly Church, 127 W. Trotter St., will host a revival crusade beginning Sunday and continuing through Nov. 21, according to Pastor T. A. McDonough.

The Rev. J. Herman Alexander, one of America's greatest Southern pulpiteers will be the featured evangelist.

From his headquarters in Charlotte, N.C. he has traveled throughout the nation preaching camp meetings, conventions, seminars and revival crusades for more than 30 years.

Known as one of the fastest growing churches in Southeast Missouri since being founded two and a half years ago, Calvary operates five buses and covers an area that includes all of Sikeston, the Mini-Farms subdivision and Morehouse.

The Rev. J. H. Alexander

Along with speaking in the crusade services, the evangelist and pastor will be heard daily on the radio broadcast, "Echoes From Calvary", aired Monday through Friday at 11 a.m. by KSIM.

A nursery is provided during each service.

All-day services slated

All - day services, including dinner at the church, an afternoon singing program and evening communion and foot washing service, are scheduled Sunday at Temple of Faith General Baptist Church, which is now worshiping in its new sanctuary at 309 Smith St.

The noon dinner will follow the regular Sunday School and morning worship services, which begin at 9:45 and 11 a.m. respectively.

The afternoon service will feature two hours of gospel singing by The Shepherd's Quartet and other local singers from 2 to 4 o'clock.

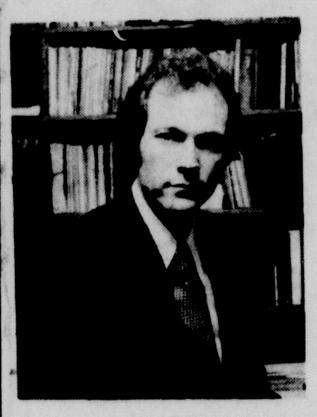

The communion and foot washing service will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The church, led by co-pastors, the Revs. Tommie Robinson of Poplar Bluff and Raymond Myrick of Matthews, recently completed construction of a new sanctuary which has greatly increased the number of seats available for services.

Oldham to sing at Portageville

PORTAGEVILLE — World renowned gospel singer Doug Oldham will appear in concert with the Family Reunion at 7 p.m. Sunday in First Church of God, 500 King Ave.

Oldham's credits are many, ranging from a tour with Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians, during which he sang for President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower as well as Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip of England, to performances before the last four U.S. presidents at some point in their political careers.

Family Reunion is a group of nine professional performers who formerly worked with other well-known gospel groups. Family Reunion and Oldham began appearing together in early December last year on a trial basis that became permanent when a contract was signed less than a month later.

Members of the Family Reunion hail from Finland, Canada, Hawaii, Ohio and Oklahoma.

Oldham's record albums, usually recorded in London with the Philharmonic Orchestra, have received wide acclaim. The national Evangeliscal Film Foundation has named him the Best Gospel Male Vocalist of the Year, and his album, "Something Worth Living For", was named the Best gospel Album.

No. 260. Jeremiah Sentenced To Die

Shephatiah, Gedaliah, Jucal, and Pashur heard that Jeremiah had predicted that the Babylonian army would raze the city, but that those who defected would be spared. They then persuaded King Zedekiah that the prophet should be put to death for being a traitor who was out to undermine the morale of the troops.

"Then took they Jeremiah, and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah the son of Hammelech, that was in the court of the prison: and they let down Jeremiah with cords. And in the dungeon there was no water, but mire: so Jeremiah sunk in the mire." (Jeremiah 38:6)

However, Ebedmelech the Ethiopian heard what had happened to Jeremiah and persuaded Zedekiah that Jeremiah should be rescued. Ebedmelech took 30 men and gathered old rags and discarded garments which they lowered to Jeremiah. "And Ebedmelech . . . said unto Jeremiah. Put now these old cast clouts and rotten rags under thine armholes under the cords. And Jeremiah did so. So they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and took him up out of the dungeon: and Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison." (Jeremiah 38: 12-13)

Mormon missionaries are assigned to Sikeston area

Two missionaries for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) are presently working in the Sikeston area. Their names are Elder Edward Mitchell and Elder Alan Lauritsen . Elder Mitchell is from Westminister, Calif., and Elder Lauritsen is from North Salt Lake, Utah.

When Male members of the Mormon church reach age 19, they are given an opportunity to serve on full-time missions. Although the church does not obligate them to go, many young men feel it is an honor to be called.

The missions last for two years, and the persons involved delay their private plans until they return. Each individual missionary works prior to leaving, so as to have the funds to support himself during the two years. When necessary, a missionary's family aids in his financial support.

The church missionary program is one of the largest in the world and spreads throughout most parts of the world, with a force of approximately 22,000. During the two years they serve, missionaries teach people about the church so that they may receive the same blessings, from service and obedience, the members feel they now receive.

The church offers many programs to the members. One of these programs is the family home evening program. This program is set up to help keep families closer together in this troubled modern world and family unit is one of the many things the missionaries share with the people they visit.

So, if you happen to see a couple of young men riding through Sikeston and surrounding communities on bicycles, it may well be Mitchell and Lauritsen out seeking to tell people about the church.

Elder Edward Mitchell

Elder Alan Lauritsen

The nearest church of Jesus Christ of latter-day Saints is located at Dexter.

Mitchell, who is 21, has been working in the Sikeston area about two months, while Lauritsen, 20, arrived only last Friday. The missionaries receive their assignments from the church, and the two had not worked together before. Mitchell's previous assignment was in the Bristol, Va., area, while Lauritsen came here from Belle Meade, Tenn., near Nashville.

Mitchell has completed about 14 months of his two-year period as a missionary, and Lauritsen has served 16 months.

Prior to becoming a missionary, Mitchell worked as a drydock crewman at Long Beach (Calif.) Naval Station to save money he would need for the two-year program. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Natalina Mitchell of Westminster, and his father is an electrical superintendent for Flour Corp.

Lauritsen worked in a grocery store before entering mission work. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lauritsen of North Salt Lake, and his father is employed by the Davis County School District.

Program to feed hungry set

A new program called "Feed the Hungry" will be inaugurated Dec. 1 by Green Memorial Church of God in Christ, 218 Dixie St., according to Elder Charlie Green Jr., pastor, who said the church will provide free hot meals for persons 65 years old and over each Wednesday.

The meals will be served from 4 to 6 p.m. in the church's dining room.

In addition to free meals for senior citizens, Elder Green said the program will feed anyone else who is hungry for a small donation.

Face Ladue Rams tomorrow at 1:30

Sikeston 'Underdogs' have something to prove

By DALE FORBIS

Theoretically, the pressure should be off the Sikeston Bulldogs. With the exception of this biased Sikeston newspaper, you won't find a person in the state that expects Sikeston to win Saturday's game outside of your average Sikeston fan. The Ladue Rams are 9-0, ranked first in the state and one of the fastest high school football teams in the history of the state.

"Our defense isn't exceptional," says Ram coach Ed Velten, but the Rams promise to be tough both when moving the ball and when trying to stop the Bulldogs.

It's up to the Bulldogs to change everybody's mind. There are a few points that can be added to Sikeston's side of the ledger to tighten things up just a bit:

First, closeness.

"There may be two or three cliques on the club, but the players all pull together."

It shouldn't be too trite to point out that the strong senior class and strong sense of brotherhood on the squad is a big factor in the Dogs' ability to pull together so well in adverse circumstances -- such as late stages of close games.

Second, conditioning.

"The weight room was left open for the players disposal," the Sikeston coach has been quoted, previously. The team members decided to make use of the weight machines and built themselves up in strength and size. The Bulldog team, although relatively the same size as Ladue's, is by far the biggest Bulldog squad in several years.

"Late in the game," said one of the Bulldogs, "we realize how important that work was. You know, when the guy across the line is really breathing hard and you're not feeling it yet."

"They're going to have to put out more than 100 percent this time, he has said. "I told them in practrice Thursday that they didn't yet know how good they really could be.

"They played just hard enough to win many times. Well, if they can hold Ladue close the first quarter or so and adjust to their (the Rams') big advantage in speed, I really think that our kids can go out there and play with these boys."

Third, attitude.

There is no way that the Ladue team can possibly come to Sikeston expecting a tough game. It is generally conceded that there are more really good football teams to play in the St. Louis area and that tends to brush off any success from a SeMo Conference squad. Only once, when Perryville had a coach named Terry Smith, has a Southeast Missouri team advanced past the first round of the state playoffs. No one seems to give the underrated Bulldog team much of a chance to change that.

"I don't know why we don't get more credit," said a team player. "We keep on winning and keep on hearing how we shoulda lost or didn't play well or something . . . heck, we won ten straight."

So, the pressure should be off, yet don't count on it. The winning streak is a precious thing to Smith, his 25 seniors and the rest of the 72-man squad. There is a pride factor involved for a team that still thinks it deserves more credit than it has received. Many of the accolades directed to the SHS team never were seen in print.

"They have more talent than any team in Southeast Missouri since the 1972 Cape Central Tigers," said coach Paul Webber after his Jackson Indians were defeated 22-21."They have the capabilities to be a great team."

Sikeston fans hope they realize that by Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

TRCC opens with victory; area cagers re-unite

PARMA — Matthews and North Pemiscot both eked out exciting come-from-behind victories Thursday night to advance to the finals of the Parma B Team Tournament.

Matthews outscored the Bernie Mules 14-5 in the fourth quarter to overcome a 37-33 deficit going in and earn a 47-42 semifinal victory. Bernie had used an eight- point advantage in the second quarter to take a two-point lead and increased that margin by two more during the third period.

Scott fired in 18 points for Matthews and Kennedy added 16 for the Pirates. Linzie scored 13 and Clayton 12 for Bernie.

In the other semifinal game, North Pemiscot trailed 37-34 at the half, but came back in the second half to nip Lilbourn 66-65. North Pem outscored the Panthers 18-14 in the third quarter to take a one-point lead, then played even in the fourth period to hang on for the victory.

Smith popped in 17 and White added 16 to pace the Mustang scoring attack. Samuelton scored 21 for the losers, while teammate Johnson added 16.

Lilbourn meets Bernie at 6:30 Saturday evening in the consolation game of the tournament, followed by the championship battle between North Pemiscot and Matthews at 8:00.

Matthews and North Pem move to Parma finals

NEELYVILLE — It was somewhat of a reunion night at Neelyville High School Thursday night. A host of former high school athletes from Southeast Missouri took the court and once again did battle against their former prep foes, but this time on the collegiate level. Three Rivers Community College of Poplar Bluff came out ahead this time, 114- 80, as they dumped Southern Baptist College of Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Although Jim Dixon of Henderson, Ky. fired in 22 points to lead the Raider rout, a pair of local athletes also played a big part in the Three Rivers effort. Steve Glenn of New Madrid came off the bench to score 18, and Mike Brashear, a Kelly High School product, added 16. Dan Foster of Ellington also scored in double figures for Three Rivers with 18.

For Southern Baptist, the freshman frontline duo of Otto Porter and Ricky Thomas picked up in the collegiate ranks where they left off in high school. Porter was the leading scorer for the SBC Eagles with 21 points, while Thomas, his teammate on Scott Central's state championship team of last spring, was right behind with 20.

Other area standouts who played were John Patty and Gene Deckard of Neelyville, who returned to the familiar NHS gymnasium where they played their prep ball. Steve Cookson of Advance and Vangale West of Sikeston are on the Southern Baptist team.

Face Ladue Rams tomorrow at 1:30

Sikeston 'Underdogs' have something to prove

By DALE FORBIS

Theoretically, the pressure should be off the Sikeston Bulldogs. With the exception of this biased Sikeston newspaper, you won't find a person in the state that expects Sikeston to win Saturday's game outside of your average Sikeston fan. The Ladue Rams are 9-0, ranked first in the state and one of the fastest high school football teams in the history of the state.

"Our defense isn't exceptional," says Ram coach Ed Velten, but the Rams promise to be tough both when moving the ball and when trying to stop the Bulldogs.

It's up to the Bulldogs to change everybody's mind. There are a few points that can be added to Sikeston's side of the ledger to tighten things up just a bit:

First, closeness.

"There may be two or three cliques on the club, but the players all pull together."

It shouldn't be too trite to point out that the strong senior class and strong sense of brotherhood on the squad is a big factor in the Dogs' ability to pull together so well in adverse circumstances -- such as late stages of close games.

Second, conditioning.

"The weight room was left open for the players disposal," the Sikeston coach has been quoted, previously. The team members decided to make use of the weight machines and built themselves up in strength and size. The Bulldog team, although relatively the same size as Ladue's, is by far the biggest Bulldog squad in several years.

"Late in the game," said one of the Bulldogs, "we realize how important that work was. You know, when the guy across the line is really breathing hard and you're not feeling it yet."

"They're going to have to put out more than 100 percent this time, he has said. "I told them in practrice Thursday that they didn't yet know how good they really could be.

"They played just hard enough to win many times. Well, if they can hold Ladue close the first quarter or so and adjust to their (the Rams') big advantage in speed, I really think that our kids can go out there and play with these boys."

Third, attitude.

There is no way that the Ladue team can possibly come to Sikeston expecting a tough game. It is generally conceded that there are more really good football teams to play in the St. Louis area and that tends to brush off any success from a SeMo Conference squad. Only once, when Perryville had a coach named Terry Smith, has a Southeast Missouri team advanced past the first round of the state playoffs. No one seems to give the underrated Bulldog team much of a chance to change that.

"I don't know why we don't get more credit," said a team player. "We keep on winning and keep on hearing how we shoulda lost or didn't play well or something . . . heck, we won ten straight."

So, the pressure should be off, yet don't count on it. The winning streak is a precious thing to Smith, his 25 seniors and the rest of the 72-man squad. There is a pride factor involved for a team that still thinks it deserves more credit than it has received. Many of the accolades directed to the SHS team never were seen in print.

"They have more talent than any team in Southeast Missouri since the 1972 Cape Central Tigers," said coach Paul Webber after his Jackson Indians were defeated 22-21."They have the capabilities to be a great team."

Sikeston fans hope they realize that by Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

TRCC opens with victory; area cagers re-unite

PARMA — Matthews and North Pemiscot both eked out exciting come-from-behind victories Thursday night to advance to the finals of the Parma B Team Tournament.

Matthews outscored the Bernie Mules 14-5 in the fourth quarter to overcome a 37-33 deficit going in and earn a 47-42 semifinal victory. Bernie had used an eight- point advantage in the second quarter to take a two-point lead and increased that margin by two more during the third period.

Scott fired in 18 points for Matthews and Kennedy added 16 for the Pirates. Linzie scored 13 and Clayton 12 for Bernie.

In the other semifinal game, North Pemiscot trailed 37-34 at the half, but came back in the second half to nip Lilbourn 66-65. North Pem outscored the Panthers 18-14 in the third quarter to take a one-point lead, then played even in the fourth period to hang on for the victory.

Smith popped in 17 and White added 16 to pace the Mustang scoring attack. Samuelton scored 21 for the losers, while teammate Johnson added 16.

Lilbourn meets Bernie at 6:30 Saturday evening in the consolation game of the tournament, followed by the championship battle between North Pemiscot and Matthews at 8:00.

Missouri, Oklahoma meet tomorrow

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Oklahoma will run. Missouri will pass. Who wins the game...may be who has the ball last.

That may not be poetic artistry, but it could very well size up the situation Saturday when the two offensive-minded teams clash in a game that could go a long way toward unscrambling the wild Big Eight Conference football race.

Both teams are 4-2 and need a victory if in order to have a shot at a share of the conference title.

Scouts forthe Gator, Tangerine, Fiesta and Sun bowls will be on hand for should be an offensive show. Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m.

The Sooners have gotten its wishbone attack rolling the past three weeks behind soph quarterback Thomas Lott, who rushed for 195 yards and scored three touchdowns in a 49-20 victory over Kansas State last week. Lott was named co-offensive player of the week in the Big Eight.

The Tigers, meanwhile, are more noted for their passing because of the talents of Steve Pisarkiewicz and Steve Woods, probably the best quarterback tandem in the country. They have excellent receivers in Joe Stewart and Leo Lewis.

The Sooners are 6-2-1 and have been eaten alive by the pass in losses to Oklahoma State, 31-24, and Colorado, 42-31. The Cowboys didn't throw many against the injury-riddled Sooner secondary, but they got two touchdowns on passes. Meanwhile Colorado clicked for 191 yards and a week ago Kansas State's unheralded Wendell Hendrickson tossed for 283 yards to win the offensive player award with Lott.

The 11th-ranked Tigers, meanwhile, have been vunerable to the rush most of the season, although last week they held explosive colorado on a lone touchdown in a 16-7 win. The Tigers' 6-3 record is misleading when you take in account victories over such powerhouses as Ohio State, Nebraska and Southern California.

The Sooner pass defense should improve this week because of the return to the lineup of strong safety Scott Hill and cornerback Terry Peters. Also, junior tackle Richard Murray has been moved to nose guard, replacing freshman Jerome Harris. David Hudgens, considered a good pass rusher, replaces Murry.

Switzer says the Tigers offense is the most balanced in the league, noting Curtis Brown rushed for 150 yards against OU in the second half last year when the Sooners escaped with a 28-27 win.

"Besides Pete Woods and Curtis Brown, they have the best set of tackles in the league," he said. " Both Morris towns and James Taulor are excellent players."

Tiger Coach Al Onofrio had similar praise for the 14th-rated Sooners. "Nobody has really contained Oklahoma's explosive attack since the Texas game," he said. "They are capable of scoring lots of points...

"Defensing the wishbone is always a tough challenge, and so is playing at Owen Field. We haven't won there since 1966."

Matthews shooting for best season since '68

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

MATTHEWS — A quintet of returning starters will be the key to the success of the Matthews Pirates this year as they try to put together their best cage season since the state championship campaign of 1968.

With an abundance of experienced talent returning from last year's 12-10 squad, Pirate coach Dale Sexton has a right to be enthusiastic about his team's chances this year.

Other area coaches must also be wary of a resurgence in basketball at MHS. They picked the Pirates seventh in The Daily Standard's pre-season poll.

Only one starter -- Len Lape -- was lost from the Pirate club of a year ago. That leaves five remaining starters coming back to boost the Matthews fortunes this year.

What's that? Six starters last year? That's right, due to an unusual eligibility situation. The second- leading scoring for the team, Norman Webb was lost at the semester a year ago because of grade problems. Webb is back this year because of a new ruling changing the cutoff date on eligibility. The 5-9 senior brings a 16-point per game scoring average from last year to the MHS back court.

Webb's replacement, 6-2 Gerald Davis, is also back this year. Davis came off the B team when Webb became scholastically ineligible and averaged ten points per game. He will be moving to a forward position this season.

At the other guard spot will be the leading scorer from a year ago, Larry Robinson. Robinson fired in points at a clip of 18 per game last year, teaming with Webb to give the Pirates a potent one-two outside threat from the guard spot. "One on one, he's as good as anybody around," said Sexton about his number one scoring threat. "There may be someone around who is as good, but not any better."

While the Pirates are well set at the guard position, they will also have good strength up front. In addition to Davis, Bill Sexton and Lee Cammon are both returning to start again for Coach Sexton. Sexton, the coach's cousin, will return at forward, where he averaged nine points a game and was second on the team in rebounding a year ago. And Cammon, probably the shortest center in the area at 5-11, led the club in rebounding last year and contributed 14 points per game to the Matthews offense. "Lee's a great leaper," Sexton said about his post man, who can dunk the ball despite his short stature.

Matthews should also have good bench strength this year. "When we substitute, we won't be hurting much," Sexton noted. The team's best ball-handler, 5-8 guard Terry Blankenship, will fill in when needed in the backcourt, while Kevin Raper, Doug Friend and David Hart, a trio of juniors, also will help out.

Sexton said that expects his team to be versatile offensively, although he admitted that the Pirates will have more offense than they will defense. "We'll go outside to get inside, and we'll go inside to get outside," the MHS mentor explained about the Pirates' simple offensive strategy. He added that the Bucs will fast break whenever possible.

"We'll go basically with a 2-3 zone," said Sexton in describing the Matthews defnese. "I'm not of the philosophy that you have to play man-to-man to win."

The Pirate coach had struck the nail directly on the head. Winning is the big goal, whether the score is 40-39 or 100-99. Matthews should do a lot of it this year.

Chief (0-8) switches sides this week; picks Dogs over Ladue

It was truly one of the great prediction performances of all times ... yuk, yuk. T-Bone and the Forb are ashamed of their four out of eight nights last Friday, but the Chief, hexed because he went against the Bulldogs, missed (whisper) ALL EIGHT GAMES!

Going into the last week of the year, the Forb and T-Bone are tied for first place in the rankings, with considerably lower percentage marks than a week before. Both have hit 69 of 87 for a 79.3 percentage. The Chief, believe it or not, is still above the .500 mark at 64 hits in 87 tries. That's 73.6 percent.

The five games and our panel's picks are as follows:

PERRYVILLE AT CAPE -- When the Chief picked Perryville to win after the Forb had already gone for the Pirates, the Forb was heard to exclaim: "Oh, no! I've missed another one." The Forb was obviously referring to the Chief's recent "success" in the predicting game.

CHIEF: Perryville by 4.
FORB: Perryville by 6.
T-BONE: Cape Central by 6.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT KENNETT-- "Harv (coach Welch) is a truly fine man," says the Forb, "but I must go against him when his team plays a larger school." T-Bone and Charlie go with the Tigers, but the Bone predicts a close game.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 14.
FORB: Kennett by 3.
T-BONE: Caruthersville by 1.

EAST PRAIRIE AT SOUTH PEMISCOT – As far as we know, no high school runner has ever rushed for five hundred yards in a game. This might be the time for the Eagles' Danny Johnson. You have to admire the South Pem players and coaches who, despite their personnel problems, have kept coming back, offering no excuses and giving their all each time out under difficult circumstances.

CHIEF: East Prairie by 35.
FORB: East Prairie by 28.
T-BONE: East Prairie by 21.

CHIEF: Portageville by 10.
FORB: Portageville by 10.
T-BONE: Portageville by 14.

LADUE AT SIKESTON -- Yet another "game of the year" for the Dogs and their rabid fans. Each week one of the panel offers himself as a sacrificial goat to the multitudes of Bulldog backers and goes against SHS. This time that unsavory task goes to Stan "T-Bone" (address unknown) Hall.

"Heck, I think they'll (Ladue) win by seven," says the brave, but foolish forecaster. "There's no doubt I want Sikeston to win and think they can, but they'll have to play a great game."

Charlie picks the Bulldogs, but the Francis curse can be overcome by a dedicated 48 minutes of football by the superbly-talented Bulldog team, instead of the 20 minutes or so that Sikeston fans have been getting.

By the way, has anybody seen Charles Blanton III lately???

CHIEF: Sikeston by 2. (Thereby assuring himself of at least one right.)

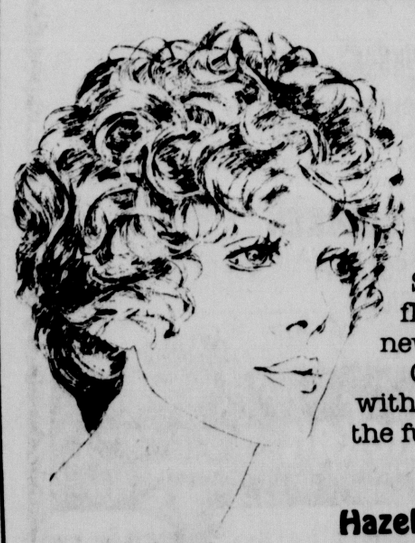

FORB: Sikeston by 6. (Thereby assuring himself of a second consecutive week of comparative peace after picking Sikeston to lose to Jackson.)

T-BONE: Ladue by 7. (Thereby assuring himself of considerably fewer friends.)

Missouri, Oklahoma meet tomorrow

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Oklahoma will run. Missouri will pass. Who wins the game...may be who has the ball last.

That may not be poetic artistry, but it could very well size up the situation Saturday when the two offensive-minded teams clash in a game that could go a long way toward unscrambling the wild Big Eight Conference football race.

Both teams are 4-2 and need a victory if in order to have a shot at a share of the conference title.

Scouts forthe Gator, Tangerine, Fiesta and Sun bowls will be on hand for should be an offensive show. Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m.

The Sooners have gotten its wishbone attack rolling the past three weeks behind soph quarterback Thomas Lott, who rushed for 195 yards and scored three touchdowns in a 49-20 victory over Kansas State last week. Lott was named co-offensive player of the week in the Big Eight.

The Tigers, meanwhile, are more noted for their passing because of the talents of Steve Pisarkiewicz and Steve Woods, probably the best quarterback tandem in the country. They have excellent receivers in Joe Stewart and Leo Lewis.

The Sooners are 6-2-1 and have been eaten alive by the pass in losses to Oklahoma State, 31-24, and Colorado, 42-31. The Cowboys didn't throw many against the injury-riddled Sooner secondary, but they got two touchdowns on passes. Meanwhile Colorado clicked for 191 yards and a week ago Kansas State's unheralded Wendell Hendrickson tossed for 283 yards to win the offensive player award with Lott.

The 11th-ranked Tigers, meanwhile, have been vunerable to the rush most of the season, although last week they held explosive colorado on a lone touchdown in a 16-7 win. The Tigers' 6-3 record is misleading when you take in account victories over such powerhouses as Ohio State, Nebraska and Southern California.

The Sooner pass defense should improve this week because of the return to the lineup of strong safety Scott Hill and cornerback Terry Peters. Also, junior tackle Richard Murray has been moved to nose guard, replacing freshman Jerome Harris. David Hudgens, considered a good pass rusher, replaces Murry.

Switzer says the Tigers offense is the most balanced in the league, noting Curtis Brown rushed for 150 yards against OU in the second half last year when the Sooners escaped with a 28-27 win.

"Besides Pete Woods and Curtis Brown, they have the best set of tackles in the league," he said. " Both Morris towns and James Taulor are excellent players."

Tiger Coach Al Onofrio had similar praise for the 14th-rated Sooners. "Nobody has really contained Oklahoma's explosive attack since the Texas game," he said. "They are capable of scoring lots of points...

"Defensing the wishbone is always a tough challenge, and so is playing at Owen Field. We haven't won there since 1966."

MATTHEWS — A quintet of returning starters will be the key to the success of the Matthews Pirates this year as they try to put together their best cage season since the state championship campaign of 1968.

With an abundance of experienced talent returning from last year's 12-10 squad, Pirate coach Dale Sexton has a right to be enthusiastic about his team's chances this year.

Other area coaches must also be wary of a resurgence in basketball at MHS. They picked the Pirates seventh in The Daily Standard's pre-season poll.

Only one starter -- Len Lape -- was lost from the Pirate club of a year ago. That leaves five remaining starters coming back to boost the Matthews fortunes this year.

What's that? Six starters last year? That's right, due to an unusual eligibility situation. The second- leading scoring for the team, Norman Webb was lost at the semester a year ago because of grade problems. Webb is back this year because of a new ruling changing the cutoff date on eligibility. The 5-9 senior brings a 16-point per game scoring average from last year to the MHS back court.

Webb's replacement, 6-2 Gerald Davis, is also back this year. Davis came off the B team when Webb became scholastically ineligible and averaged ten points per game. He will be moving to a forward position this season.

At the other guard spot will be the leading scorer from a year ago, Larry Robinson. Robinson fired in points at a clip of 18 per game last year, teaming with Webb to give the Pirates a potent one-two outside threat from the guard spot. "One on one, he's as good as anybody around," said Sexton about his number one scoring threat. "There may be someone around who is as good, but not any better."

While the Pirates are well set at the guard position, they will also have good strength up front. In addition to Davis, Bill Sexton and Lee Cammon are both returning to start again for Coach Sexton. Sexton, the coach's cousin, will return at forward, where he averaged nine points a game and was second on the team in rebounding a year ago. And Cammon, probably the shortest center in the area at 5-11, led the club in rebounding last year and contributed 14 points per game to the Matthews offense. "Lee's a great leaper," Sexton said about his post man, who can dunk the ball despite his short stature.

Matthews should also have good bench strength this year. "When we substitute, we won't be hurting much," Sexton noted. The team's best ball-handler, 5-8 guard Terry Blankenship, will fill in when needed in the backcourt, while Kevin Raper, Doug Friend and David Hart, a trio of juniors, also will help out.

Sexton said that expects his team to be versatile offensively, although he admitted that the Pirates will have more offense than they will defense. "We'll go outside to get inside, and we'll go inside to get outside," the MHS mentor explained about the Pirates' simple offensive strategy. He added that the Bucs will fast break whenever possible.

"We'll go basically with a 2-3 zone," said Sexton in describing the Matthews defnese. "I'm not of the philosophy that you have to play man-to-man to win."

The Pirate coach had struck the nail directly on the head. Winning is the big goal, whether the score is 40-39 or 100-99. Matthews should do a lot of it this year.

Chief (0-8) switches sides this week; picks Dogs over Ladue

It was truly one of the great prediction performances of all times ... yuk, yuk. T-Bone and the Forb are ashamed of their four out of eight nights last Friday, but the Chief, hexed because he went against the Bulldogs, missed (whisper) ALL EIGHT GAMES!

Going into the last week of the year, the Forb and T-Bone are tied for first place in the rankings, with considerably lower percentage marks than a week before. Both have hit 69 of 87 for a 79.3 percentage. The Chief, believe it or not, is still above the .500 mark at 64 hits in 87 tries. That's 73.6 percent.

The five games and our panel's picks are as follows:

PERRYVILLE AT CAPE -- When the Chief picked Perryville to win after the Forb had already gone for the Pirates, the Forb was heard to exclaim: "Oh, no! I've missed another one." The Forb was obviously referring to the Chief's recent "success" in the predicting game.

CHIEF: Perryville by 4.
T-BONE: Cape Central by 6.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT KENNETT-- "Harv (coach Welch) is a truly fine man," says the Forb, "but I must go against him when his team plays a larger school." T-Bone and Charlie go with the Tigers, but the Bone predicts a close game.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 14.
FORB: Kennett by 3.
T-BONE: Caruthersville by 1.

EAST PRAIRIE AT SOUTH PEMISCOT – As far as we know, no high school runner has ever rushed for five hundred yards in a game. This might be the time for the Eagles' Danny Johnson. You have to admire the South Pem players and coaches who, despite their personnel problems, have kept coming back, offering no excuses and giving their all each time out under difficult circumstances.

CHIEF: East Prairie by 35.
FORB: East Prairie by 28.
T-BONE: East Prairie by 21.

CHIEF: Portageville by 10.
FORB: Portageville by 10.
T-BONE: Portageville by 14.

LADUE AT SIKESTON -- Yet another "game of the year" for the Dogs and their rabid fans. Each week one of the panel offers himself as a sacrificial goat to the multitudes of Bulldog backers and goes against SHS. This time that unsavory task goes to Stan "T-Bone" (address unknown) Hall.

"Heck, I think they'll (Ladue) win by seven," says the brave, but foolish forecaster. "There's no doubt I want Sikeston to win and think they can, but they'll have to play a great game."

Charlie picks the Bulldogs, but the Francis curse can be overcome by a dedicated 48 minutes of football by the superbly-talented Bulldog team, instead of the 20 minutes or so that Sikeston fans have been getting.

By the way, has anybody seen Charles Blanton III lately???

CHIEF: Sikeston by 2. (Thereby assuring himself of at least one right.)

FORB: Sikeston by 6. (Thereby assuring himself of a second consecutive week of comparative peace after picking Sikeston to lose to Jackson.)

Malone Theatre undergoes remodeling

50 years ago
November 12, 1926

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gresham spent Tuesday in Poplar Bluff.

During the past month, the Malone Theatre has been undergoing redecoration and improvements. One noticeable improvement is a fine new women's rest room under the left balcony. A new furnace has also been installed and a new screen, 12 x 15 feet, replaces the old one.

J. H. McCord, father of Mrs. Roger Bailey and R. A. McCord of Sikeston and Ed McCord of Lilbourn, died apoplexy at his home in Oxford, Ind., Monday.

Dr. George J. Branson, jr., son of the famous physician, who has been in charge of the United States leper colony in Hawaii, gave an illustrated lecture to the students of thehigh school and seventh and eighth grades, Thursday during the first hour.

November 12, 1936

Oran-- Miss Freda Carr, troop capatin of the Girl Scouts, and Miss Louanna Fulenwider, lieutenant of the Bob White patrol, entertained the patrol with a wiener roast Friday after school.

Pleasant Valley -- Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Larcom and son, Edward D., of St. Louis, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Larcom.

Matthews School notes. The DeWillo Concert Co., gave a very fine program last Saturday. The attendance was very disappointing, however. Only a handful were present, but this did not cause the artists to do less than their best. Those present were unanimous in proclaiming their highest appreciation for the performance.

J. P. Hopper, 58 years old, of Oran, died Thursday at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Tom Moore, for several years ticket agent for the Greyhound Bus Lines at Cape Girardeau, has taken over the Semo Bus Lines Agency in Sikeston and has purchased the Semo Cafe from Gilbert Clinton. Both are located at 109 North Kingshighway. Mr. Clinton was previously agent for the Semo Bus Lines.

Wm. Cleve Rodgers, 29 years old, the second victim of a truck accident last week, died of internal injuries early Saturday at a Cape Girardeau hospital. A pickup truck in which Rodgers was riding with Orville Headlee, left Highway 61 near Marston and struck a culvert. Headlee died en route to a hospital.

Funeral services for the Rev. Hillery Patterson, well known Baptist minister of Sikeston, were conducted Sunday. He was 78 years of age.

District football scores were: Charleston 13, Poplar Bluff 0; Caruthersville 14, Jackson 6; Dexter 18, Malden 0; and Kennett 38, East Prairie 0.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cates were honored at an Open House Sunday at their home on Route 2, in celebration of their Golden Wedding Anniversary, for which all their children were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Mallard, 306 Branum street, are parents of a baby boy born on the 10th at the Delta Community Hospital.

Babies born yesterday were: A baby boy to Mr. and Mrs. Wade Satterfield, 112 Third street; and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bunch, Cape Girardeau.

Mr. and Ms. Daniel Malone have purchased the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Leighninger, Hunter and Moore, and expect to occupy same in about two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Leighninger are building a new home on Bel Air Drive.

Miss Kay York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren York, 504 North Ranney avenue, was elected Queen of the 14th District, the American Legion, at the district meeting in Poplar Bluff this past weekend. She was also elected Miss Sikeston at this year's Cotton Carnival.

Babies born at the local hospital today were: A baby boy for Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Carter of Route 2; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Trout of Kewanee, a baby boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bloomer of Sikeston are parents of a son born Friday at the Cape Osteopathic Hospital.

Dr. Lamb

Is she starving self?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB -- I am 13. A couple of months ago I went on a starvation diet. Now everytime I put food in my stomach I get very bad pains in my sides, back and stomach. I went to the doctor and he said I had an infection of the urinary tract. Do you think the infection is causing the pain or do you think the problem is in my stomach?

DEAR READER — My tentative answer is no to both questions. Your letter disturbs me because young girls your age are susceptible to a condition called anorexia nervosa. The problem begins with the girl thinking she is overweight and going on a severe diet — as you have done — or even inducing vomiting after eating to "become thin."

The girl loses proper perspective of her own body image and imagines she is fatter than she really is. With her very real distortion of the facts she persists on a starvation diet and gradually becomes emaciated and has a severe disturbance in normal hormonal development. Such a girl may not have normal menstruation. In fact, menses may be totally absent.

Unfortunately the victim is sufficiently out of touch with the realities of the situation that she seldom accepts facts and frequently cannot manage her own case. She needs professional help.

I would wonder if your starvation diet was not the beginning of this problem for you. It centers around the problems of endocrine changes and puberty, involving psychological aspects of development. Having a physical reaction to eating when you think eating is going to make you fat, even if you are not fat, may well be the cause of your pain.

I don't doubt that you have a urinary tract infection. Your resistance to infection may be lowered.

Let me urge you to make a factual appraisal of whether or not you have lost weight. If you have lost quite a few pounds I hope you will make arrangements to get some professional counseling in a mental health clinic. A review of the possibility of your having anorexia nervosa or related psychological problems in that instance will be essential to your future health.

Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter, number 2-2, Low Carbohydrate Diet Fads to give you more information on the harmful effects of unwise dieting. That includes fasting. Others who want this information on the Atkins' diet and other low carbohydrate fads can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some health articles recommend eating liver, kidneys, hearts and tongue. My friend tries to tell me they are too toxic. What do you think?

DEAR READER — The organ meats available in the grocery stores are not poisonous. Almost all of them are fairly high in cholesterol. A three-and-a-half ounce (100 grams) serving of liver, raw weight, contains 300 milligrams of cholesterol, more than you find in an egg yolk. However, it is very low in fat.

Zevon hailed as a rock Socrates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warren Zevon has been hailed as a kind of rock Socrates with a standup comedy act, a lyrical Chevy Chase with a piano.

He is loved by critics, who insist he descended onto the rock scene to "puncture the balloons of pretension" crowding the rock-star-cum-desperado milieu of Jackson Browne, the Eagles, Linda Rondstadt and other purveyors of the rock musician-as-"outlaw" cliche.

So, after years of obscurity that found him writing jingles for the wine industry, cutting an album that zoomed nonstop into oblivion and serving as the honorary coroner for Pitkin County, Colo., Zevon is relishing the national praise, right?

He quivers with joy when Newsweek lauds his driving "the self-destructive hedonism of L.A. rockers literally into the ground," right?

And when Rolling Stone magazine had the savvy to recognize that the "French Inhaler" track off his "Warren Zevon" album was really a jab at Norman Mailer's exploitation of Marilyn Monroe, Zevon just knew he had made it, right?

Wrong.

"Puncturing the balloons of pretension?" laughs Zevon, quoting one assessment of his work. "Now that would be too much. God knows, it's hard enough to write without adding considerations like those.

"I'm pleased to see the amount of response I've gotten, it's thrilling, that goes without saying," says the articulate, soft-spoken singer-songwriter. "But there are a few instances in which critics have taken an irresponsible leap of false intuition and made assumptions about the subject matter of songs that is not correct.

"It has piqued me a little, you know?"

The "Desperados Under the Eaves" cut on his highly successful "Warren Zevon" album is the song critics most often point to when trying to illustrate Zevon's satirical acumen.

The scenario is the Hollywood Hawaiian Hotel; the rock desperado — in fashion typical to songs of thiu genre — spits out his toughness: "All the salty margaritas in Los Angeles, I'm gonna drink 'em up." He is then lulled into a stupor by the air conditioner.

Now is the time to buy a CB radio

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're looking for a Citizens Band radio set, now might be the best time to buy.

A combination of factors has depressed the market, so much so that many dealers are offering greatly reduced prices as well as free accessories to attract reluctant buyers. Despite this, some distributors have gone bankrupt in recent months.

But industry spokemen say the buyers' market is expected to end by the first of the year, when the Federal Communications Commission decision to expand the CB spectrum from 23 to 40 channels takes effect.

It was confusion over that decision — together with what one industry representatie described as the usual summer sales slump and supply finally meeting demand after an unprecedented boom — that produced the many bargains now available.

"Many dealers in the weeks after the (August) FCC decision reported that retail sales had stopped dead," said a spokesman for one major manufacturer.

Other industry representatives agreed with his report of "very, very difficult times for anybody in the CB business" during the last two months.

But most agreed the slump may be ending as Christmas approaches and with the addition of the new channels on Jan. 1 and better public understanding of the effects of the FCC channel-expansion decision.

The main problem, said John Sodolski, vice president of the Electronic Industries Association, has been a lot of confusion over whether 23-channel sets will be operable after Jan. 1.

Sodolski said there had been erroneous reports that either 23-channel sets will be obsolete or illegal then or that somehow the channels will be different.

But the only difference will be additional frequencies for CB use which the FCC and CBers themselves hope will help relieve congestion on the current 23 channels, and increased interference protection.

CBs now in use or being sold will continue to be operated as they are now, particularly on emergency channel 9 and travelers channel 19.

But CBers buying 40-channel sets are expected to utilize the new upper 17 channels and thus lessen the crowded conditions on the current 23.

As one industry spokesman said: "Most people use only three channels — 9, 19 and one of their choosing for conversation. When the 40-channel sets go into operation, those seeking a conversation channel probably will go to the upper 17," where conditions will be less crowded and range much farther.

CBers wishing to use the new channels will have to buy new sets, however, since the FCC has ruled illegal the addition of any equipment to current 23-channel models to permit use of the new channels.

To have permitted add-ons, an FCC official said, would have resulted in off-frequency transmissions and interference with other channels and radio and television reception.

Some manufacturers have countered the drop in sales with offers to sell new 23-channel models now and, for a small fee, remanufacture them after Jan. 1 to permit reception of all 40 channels.

The FCC is permitting this practice only with newly manufactured sets because of new regulations requiring increased interference protection in the new 40-channel sets after Jan. 1.

The remanufacturing process usually will involve sending the set back to the factory, with a bill of sale indicating date of purchase and the manufacturer's promise to add the new 17 channels.

The process is expected to take at least a week, perhaps longer depending on the number of sets arriving simultaneously.

But don't count on saving time by waiting until Jan. 1 to buy a new 40-channel set.

"There's a pent-up demand by people waiting for the new 40-channel sets," says one industry spokesman. "That, combined with tighter specifications that are causing manufacturers more difficulty than anticipated to meet the 40-channel demand, could well result in a shortage of new sets in January."

Meanwhile, another manufacturer says 23-channel sets still will be sold after Jan. 1, perhaps representing half of the sales early next year and one-third of the market in 1978.

"All the action is on the first 23 channels and will remain there," he said.

What's the law?

The case of the shot-down lover

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Officer Kelly was a confirmed bachelor. Tall, dark and handsome, he was confirmed as an expert lover by every woman he ever took out.

Unfortunately, being a romantic policeman had its uncontemplated hazards. As he had his arms wrapped around a blonde one evening, his service revolver fell out of his holster, and, hitting the floor, shot officer Kelly in the leg.

With his leg shattered, as well as his romance, Officer Kelly filed a claim for a Workman's Compensation award -- only to be turned down.

"If you were shot chasing a criminal," he was told, "that would be one thing. But you were shot while making love. So how do you figure you're entitled to an award?"

"Because technically, a policeman is always on duty," was the lawman's answer. "Whether he's injured in a clinch or while making a pinch makes no difference. He's on duty and, consequently, he's entitled to an award."

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Officer Kelley a Workman's Compensation award?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that to be entitled to a Workman's Compensation award, an injury must be incurred during an activity connected with the employe's job or duty. In this case, concluded the judge, Officer Kelly's injury was incurred during a romantic interlude, which was unconnected with his employment or job.

Caper with gypsies ends in stand off with police

POPLAR BLUFF — Local law enforcement officers had their hands full Tuesday when they rounded up a band of gypsies in Wayne County suspected of an $800 theft in Stoddard County and tried to transport the caravan back to the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department at Bloomfield.

The string of events began shortly after noon when a group of gypsies entered Bass Cafe at Dudley, created a disturbance and left. After they left, the owner of the cafe discovered about $800 missing.

Radio dispatches throughout the area located the group, which turned out to be six men, seven women, and 11 children in three cars, in Poplar Bluff.

The band of gypsies, whom officials said claimed they were Yugoslavian, went into the Poplar Bluff Wal-Mart stores, but reportedly were not observed taking anything as store personnel watched closely.

They later were intercepted by highway patrolmen on Highway 67 in Wayne County north of Greenville. That county's sheriff's office quickly disclaimed the band, saying they could not hold such a large number in their jail.

Troopers determined the next course of action would be to accompany the group back to Poplar Bluff, where they might be housed in the larger Butler County jail. By the time the caravan reached the outskirts of the city, however, the sheriff's office had notified them the band was not wanted for any crimes in Butler County, and besides, they added, there wasn't room for them in the jail.

The train of police and gypsies, by this time consisting of more than half a dozen cars, moved on to Stoddard County, joined by deputies from the sheriff's office at Bloomfield.

Once they arrived there,the band was searched and questioned, and a large sum of money was found on the persons of various members of the entourage. The proprietor of Bass Cafe, where the incident began, however, could not identify the group, nor had she seen them actually take anything and all 24 were released after turning $800 over to the sheriff's department.

Reports later in the day indicated a band of gypsies were suspected of a similar $600 theft in Kewanee, officials reported.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A Toledo dentist, Barbara Sawka, drove to Cleveland for an Ohio dental association seminar recently, and got lost in down town traffic.

She was driving somewhat aimlessly when she spotted a bumper sticker on a car ahead. It said, "Candy is a Halloween Prank."

That message, she reasoned, could only come from a dentist. So Dr. Sawka followed the automobile and, sure enough, it was a Cleveland dentist going to the same meeting.

Babies born yesterday were: A baby boy to Mr. and Mrs. Wade Satterfield, 112 Third street; and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bunch, Cape Girardeau.

Mr. and Ms. Daniel Malone have purchased the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Leighninger, Hunter and Moore, and expect to occupy same in about two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Leighninger are building a new home on Bel Air Drive.

Miss Kay York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren York, 504 North Ranney avenue, was elected Queen of the 14th District, the American Legion, at the district meeting in Poplar Bluff this past weekend. She was also elected Miss Sikeston at this year's Cotton Carnival.

Babies born at the local hospital today were: A baby boy for Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Carter of Route 2; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Trout of Kewanee, a baby boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bloomer of Sikeston are parents of a son born Friday at the Cape Osteopathic Hospital.

Dr. Lamb

Is she starving self?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB -- I am 13. A couple of months ago I went on a starvation diet. Now everytime I put food in my stomach I get very bad pains in my sides, back and stomach. I went to the doctor and he said I had an infection of the urinary tract. Do you think the infection is causing the pain or do you think the problem is in my stomach?

DEAR READER — My tentative answer is no to both questions. Your letter disturbs me because young girls your age are susceptible to a condition called anorexia nervosa. The problem begins with the girl thinking she is overweight and going on a severe diet — as you have done — or even inducing vomiting after eating to "become thin."

The girl loses proper perspective of her own body image and imagines she is fatter than she really is. With her very real distortion of the facts she persists on a starvation diet and gradually becomes emaciated and has a severe disturbance in normal hormonal development. Such a girl may not have normal menstruation. In fact, menses may be totally absent.

Unfortunately the victim is sufficiently out of touch with the realities of the situation that she seldom accepts facts and frequently cannot manage her own case. She needs professional help.

I would wonder if your starvation diet was not the beginning of this problem for you. It centers around the problems of endocrine changes and puberty, involving psychological aspects of development. Having a physical reaction to eating when you think eating is going to make you fat, even if you are not fat, may well be the cause of your pain.

I don't doubt that you have a urinary tract infection. Your resistance to infection may be lowered.

Let me urge you to make a factual appraisal of whether or not you have lost weight. If you have lost quite a few pounds I hope you will make arrangements to get some professional counseling in a mental health clinic. A review of the possibility of your having anorexia nervosa or related psychological problems in that instance will be essential to your future health.

Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter, number 2-2, Low Carbohydrate Diet Fads to give you more information on the harmful effects of unwise dieting. That includes fasting. Others who want this information on the Atkins' diet and other low carbohydrate fads can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some health articles recommend eating liver, kidneys, hearts and tongue. My friend tries to tell me they are too toxic. What do you think?

DEAR READER — The organ meats available in the grocery stores are not poisonous. Almost all of them are fairly high in cholesterol. A three-and-a-half ounce (100 grams) serving of liver, raw weight, contains 300 milligrams of cholesterol, more than you find in an egg yolk. However, it is very low in fat.

Zevon hailed as a rock Socrates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warren Zevon has been hailed as a kind of rock Socrates with a standup comedy act, a lyrical Chevy Chase with a piano.

He is loved by critics, who insist he descended onto the rock scene to "puncture the balloons of pretension" crowding the rock-star-cum-desperado milieu of Jackson Browne, the Eagles, Linda Rondstadt and other purveyors of the rock musician-as-"outlaw" cliche.

So, after years of obscurity that found him writing jingles for the wine industry, cutting an album that zoomed nonstop into oblivion and serving as the honorary coroner for Pitkin County, Colo., Zevon is relishing the national praise, right?

And when Rolling Stone magazine had the savvy to recognize that the "French Inhaler" track off his "Warren Zevon" album was really a jab at Norman Mailer's exploitation of Marilyn Monroe, Zevon just knew he had made it, right?

Wrong.

"Puncturing the balloons of pretension?" laughs Zevon, quoting one assessment of his work. "Now that would be too much. God knows, it's hard enough to write without adding considerations like those.

"I'm pleased to see the amount of response I've gotten, it's thrilling, that goes without saying," says the articulate, soft-spoken singer-songwriter. "But there are a few instances in which critics have taken an irresponsible leap of false intuition and made assumptions about the subject matter of songs that is not correct.

"It has piqued me a little, you know?"

The scenario is the Hollywood Hawaiian Hotel; the rock desperado — in fashion typical to songs of thiu genre — spits out his toughness: "All the salty margaritas in Los Angeles, I'm gonna drink 'em up." He is then lulled into a stupor by the air conditioner.

Now is the time to buy a CB radio

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're looking for a Citizens Band radio set, now might be the best time to buy.

A combination of factors has depressed the market, so much so that many dealers are offering greatly reduced prices as well as free accessories to attract reluctant buyers. Despite this, some distributors have gone bankrupt in recent months.

But industry spokemen say the buyers' market is expected to end by the first of the year, when the Federal Communications Commission decision to expand the CB spectrum from 23 to 40 channels takes effect.

It was confusion over that decision — together with what one industry representatie described as the usual summer sales slump and supply finally meeting demand after an unprecedented boom — that produced the many bargains now available.

"Many dealers in the weeks after the (August) FCC decision reported that retail sales had stopped dead," said a spokesman for one major manufacturer.

Other industry representatives agreed with his report of "very, very difficult times for anybody in the CB business" during the last two months.

But most agreed the slump may be ending as Christmas approaches and with the addition of the new channels on Jan. 1 and better public understanding of the effects of the FCC channel-expansion decision.

The main problem, said John Sodolski, vice president of the Electronic Industries Association, has been a lot of confusion over whether 23-channel sets will be operable after Jan. 1.

Sodolski said there had been erroneous reports that either 23-channel sets will be obsolete or illegal then or that somehow the channels will be different.

But the only difference will be additional frequencies for CB use which the FCC and CBers themselves hope will help relieve congestion on the current 23 channels, and increased interference protection.

CBs now in use or being sold will continue to be operated as they are now, particularly on emergency channel 9 and travelers channel 19.

But CBers buying 40-channel sets are expected to utilize the new upper 17 channels and thus lessen the crowded conditions on the current 23.

As one industry spokesman said: "Most people use only three channels — 9, 19 and one of their choosing for conversation. When the 40-channel sets go into operation, those seeking a conversation channel probably will go to the upper 17," where conditions will be less crowded and range much farther.

CBers wishing to use the new channels will have to buy new sets, however, since the FCC has ruled illegal the addition of any equipment to current 23-channel models to permit use of the new channels.

To have permitted add-ons, an FCC official said, would have resulted in off-frequency transmissions and interference with other channels and radio and television reception.

Some manufacturers have countered the drop in sales with offers to sell new 23-channel models now and, for a small fee, remanufacture them after Jan. 1 to permit reception of all 40 channels.

The FCC is permitting this practice only with newly manufactured sets because of new regulations requiring increased interference protection in the new 40-channel sets after Jan. 1.

The remanufacturing process usually will involve sending the set back to the factory, with a bill of sale indicating date of purchase and the manufacturer's promise to add the new 17 channels.

The process is expected to take at least a week, perhaps longer depending on the number of sets arriving simultaneously.

But don't count on saving time by waiting until Jan. 1 to buy a new 40-channel set.

"There's a pent-up demand by people waiting for the new 40-channel sets," says one industry spokesman. "That, combined with tighter specifications that are causing manufacturers more difficulty than anticipated to meet the 40-channel demand, could well result in a shortage of new sets in January."

Meanwhile, another manufacturer says 23-channel sets still will be sold after Jan. 1, perhaps representing half of the sales early next year and one-third of the market in 1978.

"All the action is on the first 23 channels and will remain there," he said.

What's the law?

The case of the shot-down lover

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Officer Kelly was a confirmed bachelor. Tall, dark and handsome, he was confirmed as an expert lover by every woman he ever took out.

Unfortunately, being a romantic policeman had its uncontemplated hazards. As he had his arms wrapped around a blonde one evening, his service revolver fell out of his holster, and, hitting the floor, shot officer Kelly in the leg.

With his leg shattered, as well as his romance, Officer Kelly filed a claim for a Workman's Compensation award -- only to be turned down.

"If you were shot chasing a criminal," he was told, "that would be one thing. But you were shot while making love. So how do you figure you're entitled to an award?"

"Because technically, a policeman is always on duty," was the lawman's answer. "Whether he's injured in a clinch or while making a pinch makes no difference. He's on duty and, consequently, he's entitled to an award."

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant Officer Kelley a Workman's Compensation award?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that to be entitled to a Workman's Compensation award, an injury must be incurred during an activity connected with the employe's job or duty. In this case, concluded the judge, Officer Kelly's injury was incurred during a romantic interlude, which was unconnected with his employment or job.

Caper with gypsies ends in stand off with police

POPLAR BLUFF — Local law enforcement officers had their hands full Tuesday when they rounded up a band of gypsies in Wayne County suspected of an $800 theft in Stoddard County and tried to transport the caravan back to the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department at Bloomfield.

Radio dispatches throughout the area located the group, which turned out to be six men, seven women, and 11 children in three cars, in Poplar Bluff.

The band of gypsies, whom officials said claimed they were Yugoslavian, went into the Poplar Bluff Wal-Mart stores, but reportedly were not observed taking anything as store personnel watched closely.

They later were intercepted by highway patrolmen on Highway 67 in Wayne County north of Greenville. That county's sheriff's office quickly disclaimed the band, saying they could not hold such a large number in their jail.

Troopers determined the next course of action would be to accompany the group back to Poplar Bluff, where they might be housed in the larger Butler County jail. By the time the caravan reached the outskirts of the city, however, the sheriff's office had notified them the band was not wanted for any crimes in Butler County, and besides, they added, there wasn't room for them in the jail.

The train of police and gypsies, by this time consisting of more than half a dozen cars, moved on to Stoddard County, joined by deputies from the sheriff's office at Bloomfield.

Once they arrived there,the band was searched and questioned, and a large sum of money was found on the persons of various members of the entourage. The proprietor of Bass Cafe, where the incident began, however, could not identify the group, nor had she seen them actually take anything and all 24 were released after turning $800 over to the sheriff's department.

Reports later in the day indicated a band of gypsies were suspected of a similar $600 theft in Kewanee, officials reported.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A Toledo dentist, Barbara Sawka, drove to Cleveland for an Ohio dental association seminar recently, and got lost in down town traffic.

She was driving somewhat aimlessly when she spotted a bumper sticker on a car ahead. It said, "Candy is a Halloween Prank."

That message, she reasoned, could only come from a dentist. So Dr. Sawka followed the automobile and, sure enough, it was a Cleveland dentist going to the same meeting.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

On this date:

In 1603, Sir Walter Raleigh was put on trial for treason in Winchester, England.

In 1927, Joseph Stalin became dictator of the Soviet Union as Leon Trotsky was expelled from the Communist Party.

In 1948, a war crimes court in Japan sentenced former Japanese Premier Hikedi Tojo and six other Japanese war leaders to death.

Ten years ago: A 16-year-old youth forced seven women and girls to lie on the floor of a beauty school in Mesa, Ariz. and shot them in the head, killing five.

Thought for today: It is the malady of our age that the young are so busy teaching us that they have no time left to learn. — Eric Hoffer, American writer, born 1902.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1603, Sir Walter Raleigh was put on trial for treason in Winchester, England.

In 1927, Joseph Stalin became dictator of the Soviet Union as Leon Trotsky was expelled from the Communist Party.

In 1948, a war crimes court in Japan sentenced former Japanese Premier Hikedi Tojo and six other Japanese war leaders to death.

Ten years ago: A 16-year-old youth forced seven women and girls to lie on the floor of a beauty school in Mesa, Ariz. and shot them in the head, killing five.

Thought for today: It is the malady of our age that the young are so busy teaching us that they have no time left to learn. — Eric Hoffer, American writer, born 1902.

Harold Anthony

FREDERICKTOWN — Harold W. Anthony, 68, brother of Mrs. Irene A. Kuehle, a Sikeston elementary school teacher, died at 11:45 p.m. Nov. 4 at his home of an apparent heart attack.

He was born July 28, 1908 in Bernie, the son of Mrs. Nellie Hartle Anthony of Perryville and the late Frank W. Anthony.

A retired employe of McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Corp. at St. Louis, he had received a personal citation from then President Franklin D. Roosevelt commending the outstanding achievements for his work on the atomic bomb and missile launchers at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

He was a member of Marcus Masonic Lodge No. 110 in Fredericktown.

On May 3, 1945 in St. Louis, he married Mary Evans, who survives.

In addition to Mrs. Kuehle, his mother and widow, surviving are: two daughters, Mrs. Jane R. Miller of St. Louis and Mrs. Cathie Gay Arrandale of Kansas City; one brother, Earl Anthony of Poplar Bluff; one other sister, Mrs. Lorene Irwin of St. Louis; and three grandsons.

George Rouse

George Rouse, 87, of Fredericktown died at 8:50 a.m. today at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The body will be moved from O'Guinn Funeral Home to Wilson Funeral Home in Fredericktown. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Willie A. Shell

DEXTER — Willie Andrew Shell, 75, died Thursday in Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Born Sept. 15, 1901 in Bollinger County, Ill., to the late William and Emeline Abernathy Shell. He had lived in Dexter most of his life and worked for Missouri Pacific Railroad until retiring in 1966.

On Oct. 22, 1922 in Paragould, Ark., he married Sevia Boling, who died Jan. 28, 1976.

Survivors include: two sons, Eugene Shell of Dexter and Beauton Shell of Lansing, Mich.; two daughters, Faustina Barker and Emogene Quinton of Dexter; one brother, Elmer Shell of Dexter; one half brother, Harvey Shell of Dexter; two stepbrothers, Neal Mouser of LaVerne, Calif., and Early Mouser of St. Louis; two half sisters, Mary Sitton and Ina Shell of Dexter; one stepsister, Dora Lackley of Dexter; and seven grandchildren and 11 great- grandchildren.

Friends may call after 3 p.m. Saturday at Watkins & Sons Funeral Home, where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Sunday with Jack Caraker of Dexter officiating.

Burial will follow in Hagy Cemetery.

Tony Leo Elder

MALDEN — Services for Tony Leo Elder, 59, who died Wednesday of an apparently self- inflicted gunshot wound, were conducted at 2 p.m. today in the Church of the Nazarene by the Revs. Howard Casteel and Donald Wells.

Burial followed in Memorial Park Cemetery, with the Landess Funeral Home of Malden in charge of arrangements.

In addition to the survivors named in Thursday's edition of The Daily Standard, he is survived by four grandchildren.

Report says to replace tenure with rights for all

By CHRIS PATTERSON
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Within the next few years, Missouri may guarantee procedural due process to all teachers instead of limiting it to only those with tenure.

A report, submitted for consideration to the Governor's Conference on Education which will meet in Columbia December 2, recommends that legislation be enacted to provide procedural due process for all certified personnel at all levels in the state.

The report, prepared by a committee studying governance of schools, also suggests that the Teacher Tenure Act be repealed. It is this recommendation that draws fire from some educators.

"Teachers have worked a long time to acquire legislation to provide some kind of teacher tenure," says Harold Austin, member of the governance committee. He says they should be reluctant to give it up.

In Missouri, a teacher acquires tenure after his fifth consecutive year with a particular school. Tenure does not mean a teacher may not be fired, but it does mean a tenured teacher must be granted due process.

If a tenured teacher is dismissed, he has the right to appear with counsel before his school board. He must be told why he is being dismissed.

Further, a teacher may be dismissed only for certain reasons: Incompetency, insubordination and immorality.

Right now, a teacher without tenure may be dismissed for reasons other than these, without the benefit of procedural due process.

This makes taking a case to court difficult, says Jim Ferguson, executive director of the Missouri National Education Association (MNEA).

"When a teacher is fired, the school boards just say 'We don't give a reason.' Now how are you going to challenge that? The courts have upheld a board's right to do this."

The Governance committee felt that "continuation of employment for a fixed number of years should not create an exclusive classification of employe rights which are not afforded to all professional employes."

Austin agrees with this in principle, but says he is afraid teachers will lose on the transfer.

"If they +legislators) would provide procedural due process with some substance to it, it would certainly take the edge off those of us who oppose the move," Austin says. "But as far as the state legislature goes, I have my doubts that they will."

Ferguson agrees, saying that a teacher can have procedural due process without any substance.

"It is a matter of having a set of grounds upon which termination can take place," Ferguson says.

Wayne Goode, chairman of the House education committee, says he does not think the legislature will weaken the intent that much.

"Of course, there has to be some give and take," Goode says. "But the tenure law isn't all that strong anyway."

Austin points out that bills to provide procedural due process for non-tenured teachers have been defeated before.

Goode admits these bills have had problems.

"One time I had the bill out on the floor," says Goode. "I was being attacked from all sides. Some said it was too strong, others said it was not strong enough."

Teacher shortage at Dexter

DEXTER — Finding qualified teachers has become a problem in the Dexter school district and in districts all over the state because of recent state legislation requiring that teachers who do not already hold life certificates must have two credit hours in the psychology of the handicapped before they may receive state certification as a substitute teacher.

This new requirement has meant that around 25 persons who were available to substitute teach in Dexter schools no longer qualify, Supt. Hill said.

At Tuesday night's board meeting, Hill recommended to board members a new name list of area persons qualified to substitute teach. The board approved that list of substitutes.

Finding substitute teachers will be a problem, Hill said, until something is done to change this state requirement which significantly reduces the number of qualified substitutes in the state. The State Board of Education prohibits a school district from placing a non-certified teacher in a public school classroom.

The two-credit-hour requirement is one which will be discussed and evaluated at the Governor's Conference on Education to be held in Columbia next month.

Of the list of recommended substitutes in this area, Hill noted that possibly only 10-12 of those persons can be available any time they are called.

Hill said the school district now has three teachers out for extended periods because of illness or for family reasons. They are John Bryant, high school vocational agriculture instructor: Revalee Minton, a fourth-grade teacher at Central Elementary and Melba Rogers a first grade teacher at Central.

School board members took action to hire policeman Lawrence Reeves as a truant officer. Reeves was recommended by Dexter city administration officials. He will be paid $10 a month for his truant officer duties, Hill said.

The board postponed any decision to agree to pay half the salary of Hubert McGuire, recently hired by the city as a school crossing guard at the Grant and One Mile Road intersection. The city has been paying McGuire $5 for his morning and $5 for his afternoon duty and has asked the school district to pay half of this salary.

Hill suggested, and other board members seemed to agree, that what is needed at that intersection is a traffic officer who can direct traffic through that intersection during the two times in the school day when traffic becomes congested there.

Loren Coffey, school board president, asked that Mayor Willis Conner be invited to the next school board meeting so the board may discuss with him what could be done by city policemen to relieve the traffic congestion at key intersections near the school around 8:15 a.m. and again near 3 p.m. Meanwhile, the board took no action on the city's request that the school district pay half of McGuire's salary.

In response to requests by two students for "early release," the board voted unanimously to allow Lisa Ringer and Tina Payne, both Dexter High School seniors, to be graduated in January 1977. Both girls will have completed all requirements necessary for early graduation at that time.

In other business, Assistant Supt. Carl Davis reported on Dexter school district efforts to comply with state regulations requiring the district to publicize through every available media special education programs snd related services available in the district; and the district's responsibility to provide special educational programs and services.

Public law also requires that an annual census of handicapped persons be taken by the school district, he said. Publication of all this information is required before the date of Nov. 1 and April 1 of each year. He reported that the Dexter school district has complied with these requirements.

The board voted to accept the lowest bid for an alternate heating system for Central Elementary School, to serve in the event of winer time emergencies. Four bids were read and the low bid of $8,562.88 by Joe Hunter of Dexter Sales and Service was accepted. That bid was for the installation of a storage tank, vaporizer, mixer, piping, etc., but does not include the cost of the tank itself or necessary fencing to surround the unit.

School board members seemed to favor trying to purchase a couple of used 1,000-gallon tanks to achieve a total storage capacity of 3,000 to 5,000 gallons for th alternate system.

The board also accepted low bids for two International Harvester chassis at $9,421.53 each and two Bluebird bus bodies at $6,582 each. Figuring a trade-in allowance on two of its retired buses, Hill estimated that the district will be paying $12,660 apiece for the new 66-pssenger buses.

The superintendent reported that fiberglass sheets to cover the east windows of the old junior high school gymnasium have been ordered. Labor and materials are estimated to run $500 to $600. Davis observed that the junior high gymnasium is in use four to five nights a week by various community groups.

In other action, the board voted unanimously on a motion to open bids on a job to lay gravel for a 40 by 40-yard bus parking area on th site of old junior high football field.

Hill also reported to the board that an insurance representative has been scheduled to re-evaluate Dexter school buildings so that insurance coverage may be updated. Building insurance was last evaluated three years ago, he noted.

Hill reported that the average daily attendance for October wqs 95 per cent. October enrollment in the district was 2,229, up from this time last year and up slightly from last month's enrollment figure.

In other financial matters, the following bills were paid: $106,030. 27 in teachers fund bills; $69,801.44 in incidental fund bills; $1,244.68 in textbook fund bills; and $16,985.33 in building fund bills. Hill distributed a financial statement which showed that after payment of these bills, the school district is left with balances of $279,237.50 in the teachers fund; $200,704.48 in the incidental fund; $8,399.06 in the textbook fund; and $46,978.30 in the red $9,610. "We're feeding a lot more students in the middle school than we did at the old junior high," he added. To cover this deficit, Hill remarked that the board may want to consider at a later time recommending an increase in lunchroom prices which, he said, are among the lowest charged by any school district in the area.

CB thefts reported

A series of citizens band radio thefts from vehicles in an area east of town Wednesday night is being investigated by the Scott County Sheriff's Department.

Battery, money stolen

Change from a soft drink machine and an automobile battery have been reported stolen in separate thefts, the Department of Public Safety announced today.

Don't take old age sitting down!

It's going to happen to you. You're going to be "older" someday.

And you're going to have to face the same problems that exist today. Unless you start changing your attitudes about aging now. Get rid of your stereotypes.

Guidelines To Parents

NEW YORK (AP) — A three-year program here, co-sponsored by New York Medical College and the New York Junior League, is designed to help teach parents how to raise well-adjusted children.

The program has been exploring ways to prevent emotional, social and learning disabilities in children by helping parents provide positive experiences and environments for their children during the first three critical years of life.

The program is being conducted by a child psychiatrist, two psychologists, a sociologist and other professionals and paraprofessionals from the medical college, along with 65 trained Junior League volunteers.

Weekly daytime sessions with small groups of parents and their babies from the age of four weeks have been held at the Early Childhood Development Center, with more than 60 pairs of parents and their children participating. Findings from the program are already adding to current knowledge of early childhood development, according to Dr. Richard E. Brotman, executive director of the Department of Community Mental Health of New York Medical College. Dr. Brotman suggests these guidelines for sensible parenting:

—Try to be responsive to a child's needs. Crying, for example, is an infant's only language — the only way to tell you that it's hungry or needs to have its diapers changed. Perhaps all it is saying is that it wants some warmth or affection.

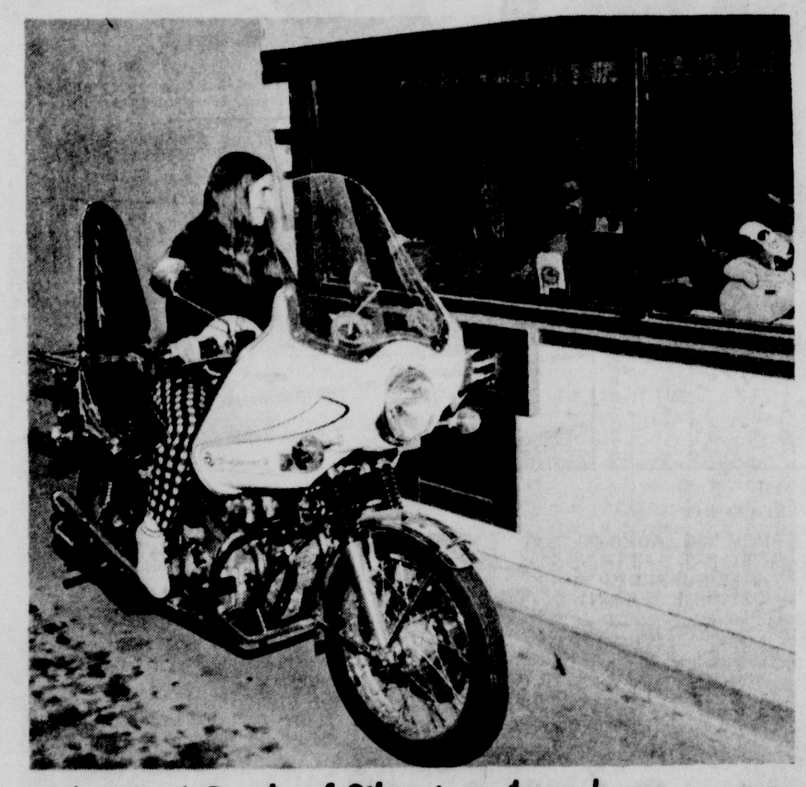

When the child is responded to, he learns that there are people around him who are going to take care of him. He develops trust in his environment. If a parent does not respond to a child's cry, he fails to learn that trust. He will make lesser attachments to the people around him. This can affect his emotional health in later life.

—Parents should demonstrate approval and pleasure. It is important for parents to understand a child's capabilities at different ages, so that they can expect appropriate reactions and can then stimulate a child appropriately, at different stages of its development, with their approval. As an example, if it's a great accomplishment for a young child merely to pick up a block in one hand and pass it to the other hand, recognize this and applaud it. Don't expect him to build a large tower.

If the expectation of a parent is for a child to perform beyond its ability, a parent can often — even silently — convey disapproval and disappointment. Obviously this can be harmful to a child's self-confidence, can reduce his self-image and make him feel that he's seldom able to please.

—Consider discipline as teaching. It is not more important to disapprove negative behavior than it is to approve good behavior.

School board members took action to hire policeman Lawrence Reeves as a truant officer. Reeves was recommended by Dexter city administration officials. He will be paid $10 a month for his truant officer duties, Hill said.

The board postponed any decision to agree to pay half the salary of Hubert McGuire, recently hired by the city as a school crossing guard at the Grant and One Mile Road intersection. The city has been paying McGuire $5 for his morning and $5 for his afternoon duty and has asked the school district to pay half of this salary.

Hill suggested, and other board members seemed to agree, that what is needed at that intersection is a traffic officer who can direct traffic through that intersection during the two times in the school day when traffic becomes congested there.

Loren Coffey, school board president, asked that Mayor Willis Conner be invited to the next school board meeting so the board may discuss with him what could be done by city policemen to relieve the traffic congestion at key intersections near the school around 8:15 a.m. and again near 3 p.m. Meanwhile, the board took no action on the city's request that the school district pay half of McGuire's salary.

In response to requests by two students for "early release," the board voted unanimously to allow Lisa Ringer and Tina Payne, both Dexter High School seniors, to be graduated in January 1977. Both girls will have completed all requirements necessary for early graduation at that time.

In other business, Assistant Supt. Carl Davis reported on Dexter school district efforts to comply with state regulations requiring the district to publicize through every available media special education programs snd related services available in the district; and the district's responsibility to provide special educational programs and services.

Public law also requires that an annual census of handicapped persons be taken by the school district, he said. Publication of all this information is required before the date of Nov. 1 and April 1 of each year. He reported that the Dexter school district has complied with these requirements.

The board voted to accept the lowest bid for an alternate heating system for Central Elementary School, to serve in the event of winer time emergencies. Four bids were read and the low bid of $8,562.88 by Joe Hunter of Dexter Sales and Service was accepted. That bid was for the installation of a storage tank, vaporizer, mixer, piping, etc., but does not include the cost of the tank itself or necessary fencing to surround the unit.

School board members seemed to favor trying to purchase a couple of used 1,000-gallon tanks to achieve a total storage capacity of 3,000 to 5,000 gallons for th alternate system.

The board also accepted low bids for two International Harvester chassis at $9,421.53 each and two Bluebird bus bodies at $6,582 each. Figuring a trade-in allowance on two of its retired buses, Hill estimated that the district will be paying $12,660 apiece for the new 66-passenger buses.

The superintendent reported that fiberglass sheets to cover the east windows of the old junior high school gymnasium have been ordered. Labor and materials are estimated to run $500 to $600. Davis observed that the junior high gymnasium is in use four to five nights a week by various community groups.

In other action, the board voted unanimously on a motion to open bids on a job to lay gravel for a 40 by 40-yard bus parking area on th site of old junior high football field.

Hill also reported to the board that an insurance representative has been scheduled to re-evaluate Dexter school buildings so that insurance coverage may be updated. Building insurance was last evaluated three years ago, he noted.

Hill reported that the average daily attendance for October wqs 95 per cent. October enrollment in the district was 2,229, up from this time last year and up slightly from last month's enrollment figure.

In other financial matters, the following bills were paid: $106,030. 27 in teachers fund bills; $69,801.44 in incidental fund bills; $1,244.68 in textbook fund bills; and $16,985.33 in building fund bills. Hill distributed a financial statement which showed that after payment of these bills, the school district is left with balances of $279,237.50 in the teachers fund; $200,704.48 in the incidental fund; $8,399.06 in the textbook fund; and $46,978.30 in the red $9,610. "We're feeding a lot more students in the middle school than we did at the old junior high," he added. To cover this deficit, Hill remarked that the board may want to consider at a later time recommending an increase in lunchroom prices which, he said, are among the lowest charged by any school district in the area.

CB thefts reported

A series of citizens band radio thefts from vehicles in an area east of town Wednesday night is being investigated by the Scott County Sheriff's Department.

Battery, money stolen

Change from a soft drink machine and an automobile battery have been reported stolen in separate thefts, the Department of Public Safety announced today.

William Gentry, 511 E. Kathleen Ave., reported the theft of a battery from his car between 5:30 and 7 p.m. Thursday while the vehicle was parked in the 100 block of East Malone Avenue.

Don't take old age sitting down!

Right now millions of Americans are being forced to sit back and rock their lives away. Simply because they're older. Stop and think about it!

It's going to happen to you. You're going to be "older" someday.

And you're going to have to face the same problems that exist today. Unless you start changing your attitudes about aging now. Get rid of your stereotypes.

Try and imagine what you'll be like. What you'll want to do. What you'll want to contribute. That's all we ask.

But you'd better hurry.

If you don't want to take your old age sitting down, get off your rocker and separate the facts from the myths.

For more information on what you can do, write: The National Council on the Aging, Inc. Box 28503, Washington, D.C. 20005.

Guidelines To Parents

NEW YORK (AP) — A three-year program here, co-sponsored by New York Medical College and the New York Junior League, is designed to help teach parents how to raise well-adjusted children.

The program has been exploring ways to prevent emotional, social and learning disabilities in children by helping parents provide positive experiences and environments for their children during the first three critical years of life.

The program is being conducted by a child psychiatrist, two psychologists, a sociologist and other professionals and paraprofessionals from the medical college, along with 65 trained Junior League volunteers.

Weekly daytime sessions with small groups of parents and their babies from the age of four weeks have been held at the Early Childhood Development Center, with more than 60 pairs of parents and their children participating. Findings from the program are already adding to current knowledge of early childhood development, according to Dr. Richard E. Brotman, executive director of the Department of Community Mental Health of New York Medical College. Dr. Brotman suggests these guidelines for sensible parenting:

—Try to be responsive to a child's needs. Crying, for example, is an infant's only language — the only way to tell you that it's hungry or needs to have its diapers changed. Perhaps all it is saying is that it wants some warmth or affection.

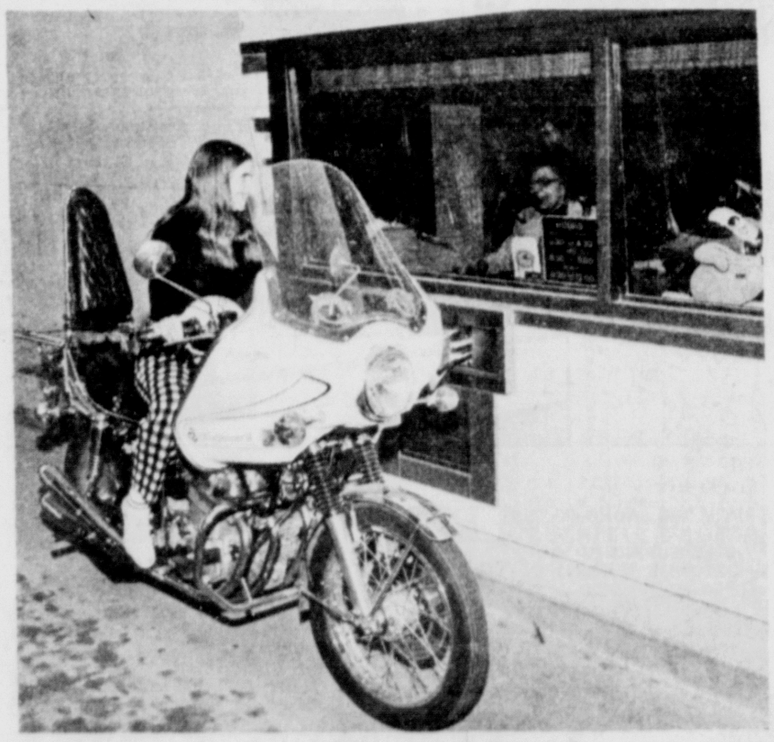

When the child is responded to, he learns that there are people around him who are going to take care of him. He develops trust in his environment. If a parent does not respond to a child's cry, he fails to learn that trust. He will make lesser attachments to the people around him. This can affect his emotional health in later life.

—Parents should demonstrate approval and pleasure. It is important for parents to understand a child's capabilities at different ages, so that they can expect appropriate reactions and can then stimulate a child appropriately, at different stages of its development, with their approval. As an example, if it's a great accomplishment for a young child merely to pick up a block in one hand and pass it to the other hand, recognize this and applaud it. Don't expect him to build a large tower.

If the expectation of a parent is for a child to perform beyond its ability, a parent can often — even silently — convey disapproval and disappointment. Obviously this can be harmful to a child's self-confidence, can reduce his self-image and make him feel that he's seldom able to please.

—Consider discipline as teaching. It is not more important to disapprove negative behavior than it is to approve good behavior.

Dunklin County man convicted of killing liquor store owner by Cape jury

JACKSON— Bobby Joiner, a Dunklin County native, was convicted Tuesday night by a Cape Girardeau County Circuit Court jury of first-degree murder, stemming from the Feb. 24 slaying of John Frank Holder, a north Dunklin County liquor store owner.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated two hours and four minutes before returning with the guilty verdict of the crime which carries a punishement of life imprisonment in Missouri.

Judge Stanley Grimm of Cape Girardeau, who also presided at the trial of Joiner's co- defendant in September, Loal Junior Joiner, now serving a life sentence for the Holder murder, gave the defendant 30 days in which to file a motion for a new trial, delaying sentencing until that time.

Dunklin County Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker prosecuted the case for the state.

Bobby and Loal Joiner are cousins.

A third defendant, John Abbott of Bernie, is awaiting trial on the murder charge. All three cases were removed from Dunklin County to Cape County on venue changes requested by the defense.

Pros. Atty. Baker played the confession for the jury, in which Holder stated to investigating officers, Deputy Bob McDonald an Trooper Larry Plunkett, that he and his companions were planning to rob Holder when they went to his liquor store in the early morning hours of Feb. 24.

In the confession, Bobby Joiner said Loal Joiner and Abbott went to the store while he and two girls waited for the pair in a car parked nearby. However, Bobby Joiner said in the confession that when Loal and Abbott returned to the car, Loal said, "Let's get out of here, I had to kill him,' ' referring to Holder.

Under Missouri's new first-degree murder statute, homicide occurring during the perpetration of certain other felonies, including robbery, is considered murder in the first degree.

After the state called 12 witnesses to the stand, the defense called the defendant, who testified the confession was made under coercion. Joiner said when he was returned to Dunklin County from Florida, where he and his co-defendants threatened by officers that unless threatened by officers that unles he cooperated, he would be placed in a cell with "St. Louis blacks" at the county jail. Joiner said he refused to make a statement and was put in the cell, but was transferred to another cell after he made his confession.

The only other defense witness was former Dunklin County jailer Larry Brandon, who verified that Joiner was placed in the cell with the St. Louis black prisoners upon his return.

Joiner denied statements made in the confession, saying that he and his companions went to Holder's rural liquor store near Clarkton only for the purpose of buying whisky, not to rob him.

The case went to the jury at 8:33 p.m. and the verdict was returned at 10:37 p.m.

Senior Citizens Center at Malden to receive $11,000 in federal grant

Mayor Sparrel Davis said the city received notification about one month ago that Malden's application had been approved.

The actual amount of the grant is $10,905 and Malden must add "matching funds" or 25 per cent, or about $2,726, to the original federal money, making a total of $13,631. Davis said the city had already been planning to renovate the center before it received the federal grant. He said meeting the 25 per cent requirement should present no problem, since there is already $5,000 to $6,000 set aside for the center.

Concrete plans and specifications on work to be done at the center are not yet firm, Davis said, but tentative plans call for installing restrooms upstairs and building ramps at the entrance for the convenience of the elderly.

The brick building, located at the corner of Douglass and Main streets, was formerly used as a church.

Initial application was made this summer after the mayor met Verl Caid, director of the Southeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging, at Kennett. Caid mentioned that federal funds were available for qualified cites, so Davis inquired further and the city applied for the money.

Johnson pointed out the role played by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission in helping the city secure the grant. "The commission," Johnson said, "assisted Malden on preparing the necessary documents to obtain these funds. It (the commission) does this for not only Malden but for all cities throughout Southeast Missouri.

"They do the initial paperwork to help apply for grants," Johnson said.

The clerk explained that Malden's grant can be used only for "renovation and alteration" of the center, not for adding to or reducing the structure.

Malden application assisted by the planning commission, was made first to the Southeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging and was forwarded upward through channels to the Missouri Office on Aging and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, where final approval was granted.

Malden must draw up plans and specifications for work on the center, bids must be taken, state and federal law on wages, etc., must be complied with before the project can begin, Johnson said.

"Malden has signed all the necessary papers to this date," he concluded. No starting date for work on the center has been set.

Benefit dinner for Stanfield Cemetery Nov. 13

GIDEON — The Stanfield Cemetery chicken and dumpling dinner will be held Saturday at the Gideon school cafeteria.

The meal will include chicken, dumplings and dressing, slaw and dessert and drink, and will be served from 4 to 8 p.m.

Persons are asked to get their food to the cafeteria by 1 p.m. on Saturdy in order to get it prepared for the serving. People who are making pies or cakes in the area who do not have a way of getting them to the cafeteria may call 448-3950 for a pickup. Everyone is asked to donate the food which was made last year.

The dinner is a means of the upkeep of the Stanfield Cemetery near Clarkton, and the only way it can be maintained through the donations of the public.

Many people in the area have tickets for sale.

Plates also will be delivered to the home.

Nancy Nelson student teaching at Delta R-5

BLOOMFIELD— Nancy Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Nelson, Route Three, is currently student teaching in the Delta R-5 School District.

MAGISTRATE COURT

CHARLESTON — A Charleston man was bound over to Circuit Court Thursday following his preliminary hearing in Mississippi County Magistrate Court before Judge W. Clifton Banta Sr., who set dates for preliminary hearings for three others.

L.S. McCain of Charleston was bound over for a Nov. 17 appearance on charges of burglary and attempted rape. McCain, who is accused of entering a home Oct. 18 and attempting to rape the occupant, remains in custody under $5,000 bond.

A preliminary hearing for Gregg Fiscus of Charleston was held and disposition of the charge of possession of a controlled substance, nebutal, was taken under advisement by Judge Banta. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Dec. 2 was scheduled as preliminary hearing date for Ronald Lee Woodham, charged with armed robbery in connection with the theft of $354 June 21 at the Quick Check Shop in East Prairie. He is in custody under $5,000 bond.

A preliminary hearing for James Easton of Charleston, charged with forgery, was reset for Dec. 2 and he remained free on $2,500 bond. Easton is accused of passing a $45.60 check Oct. 2 at the West End Market in Charleston.

Nov. 18 was set as preliminary hearing date for Lawrence Williams of Charleston, charged with burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing. In custody under $2,500 bond, Williams is charged with stealing 31 knives and a pair of boots Oct. 15 from Young's Surplus Store in Charleston.

George Mannon and Roy Mannon of East Prairie were granted changes of venues to Scott County on charges of disturbing the peace and interfering with a police officer in line of duty.

Motions for disqualification of judge was granted in felony counts of striking a police officer in performance of his duty, and Scott County Magistrate Lloyd G. Briggs was appointed to come to Mississippi County Magistrate Court to hear the cases, which all stem from a disturbance Sept. 25 at a park in East Prairie. The two are accused of striking Sgt. Bill Grissom in the face when he attempted to arrest Roy Mannon at the park.

JACKSON— Bobby Joiner, a Dunklin County native, was convicted Tuesday night by a Cape Girardeau County Circuit Court jury of first-degree murder, stemming from the Feb. 24 slaying of John Frank Holder, a north Dunklin County liquor store owner.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated two hours and four minutes before returning with the guilty verdict of the crime which carries a punishement of life imprisonment in Missouri.

Judge Stanley Grimm of Cape Girardeau, who also presided at the trial of Joiner's co- defendant in September, Loal Junior Joiner, now serving a life sentence for the Holder murder, gave the defendant 30 days in which to file a motion for a new trial, delaying sentencing until that time.

Dunklin County Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker prosecuted the case for the state.

Bobby and Loal Joiner are cousins.

A third defendant, John Abbott of Bernie, is awaiting trial on the murder charge. All three cases were removed from Dunklin County to Cape County on venue changes requested by the defense.

Pros. Atty. Baker played the confession for the jury, in which Holder stated to investigating officers, Deputy Bob McDonald an Trooper Larry Plunkett, that he and his companions were planning to rob Holder when they went to his liquor store in the early morning hours of Feb. 24.

In the confession, Bobby Joiner said Loal Joiner and Abbott went to the store while he and two girls waited for the pair in a car parked nearby. However, Bobby Joiner said in the confession that when Loal and Abbott returned to the car, Loal said, "Let's get out of here, I had to kill him,' ' referring to Holder.

Under Missouri's new first-degree murder statute, homicide occurring during the perpetration of certain other felonies, including robbery, is considered murder in the first degree.

After the state called 12 witnesses to the stand, the defense called the defendant, who testified the confession was made under coercion. Joiner said when he was returned to Dunklin County from Florida, where he and his co-defendants threatened by officers that unless he cooperated, he would be placed in a cell with "St. Louis blacks" at the county jail. Joiner said he refused to make a statement and was put in the cell, but was transferred to another cell after he made his confession.

The only other defense witness was former Dunklin County jailer Larry Brandon, who verified that Joiner was placed in the cell with the St. Louis black prisoners upon his return.

Joiner denied statements made in the confession, saying that he and his companions went to Holder's rural liquor store near Clarkton only for the purpose of buying whisky, not to rob him.

The case went to the jury at 8:33 p.m. and the verdict was returned at 10:37 p.m.

Senior Citizens Center at Malden to receive $11,000 in federal grant

Mayor Sparrel Davis said the city received notification about one month ago that Malden's application had been approved.

The actual amount of the grant is $10,905 and Malden must add "matching funds" or 25 per cent, or about $2,726, to the original federal money, making a total of $13,631. Davis said the city had already been planning to renovate the center before it received the federal grant. He said meeting the 25 per cent requirement should present no problem, since there is already $5,000 to $6,000 set aside for the center.

Concrete plans and specifications on work to be done at the center are not yet firm, Davis said, but tentative plans call for installing restrooms upstairs and building ramps at the entrance for the convenience of the elderly.

The brick building, located at the corner of Douglass and Main streets, was formerly used as a church.

Initial application was made this summer after the mayor met Verl Caid, director of the Southeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging, at Kennett. Caid mentioned that federal funds were available for qualified cites, so Davis inquired further and the city applied for the money.

Johnson pointed out the role played by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission in helping the city secure the grant. "The commission," Johnson said, "assisted Malden on preparing the necessary documents to obtain these funds. It (the commission) does this for not only Malden but for all cities throughout Southeast Missouri.

"They do the initial paperwork to help apply for grants," Johnson said.

The clerk explained that Malden's grant can be used only for "renovation and alteration" of the center, not for adding to or reducing the structure.

Malden application assisted by the planning commission, was made first to the Southeast Missouri Area Agency on Aging and was forwarded upward through channels to the Missouri Office on Aging and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, where final approval was granted.

Malden must draw up plans and specifications for work on the center, bids must be taken, state and federal law on wages, etc., must be complied with before the project can begin, Johnson said.

"Malden has signed all the necessary papers to this date," he concluded. No starting date for work on the center has been set.

Time of day may determine cost of electricity rates in the future

By TERRY JUDD
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Just as long-distance telephone rates are cheaper during certain times of the day, electric rates in the future may be cheaper during certain times of the day.

The concept is called time-of-day rates and currently is being advocated by the Missouri Public Service Commission (PSC) as a possible alternative to present rate structures.

Under time-of-day rates, it would be cheaper for electric customers to run nonessential appliances during non-peak hours. For example, it would be profitable for a ratepayer to run a dishwasher late at night rather than a hot afternoon, when many people would be running their air conditioners.

The stimulus for time-of-day rates is that the PSC hopes to reduce the growth of peak-hour demand. By reducing peak-hour demand, utilities will not have to build as much power generating capacity.

Fewer plants would be required and expensive power plants are one of the reasons for larger rate bases and contribute to higher rates. Time-of-day rates might reduce the need and number of these expensive peak-hour plants.

"Under the current rate structure, the rational consumer has no incentive not to use peak-hour," says Michael Viren, director of the PSC's Utility Research and Planning Division.

"Under time-of-day rates we're passing on to consumers the price signal that tells them the cost of the next unit of power," he says.

Viren says under the current rate structure the customer pays the same rate for electricity no matter the time of day, as long as monthly electric use does not exceed a certain number of kilowatt hours.

These rates are based on electric companies' average cost for the year. Viren says rate-payers barely cover the costs electric companies face when they operate their expensive peak-hours plants, but during low-demand period rate-payers cover expenses.

"Time-of-day rates would distribute demand more equitably," Viren says. "There's one catch however, we don't know what consumers will do under time-of-day rates."

He says with current rate structures, consumers tend to conserve more during non-peak hours. Time-of-day rates should shift conservation efforts more into peak-hours.

But to find put more about consumer behavior, the PSC has directed Kansas City Power and Light and Union Electric of St. Louis to monitor a sampling of ratepayers' electric usage. Upon completion of the studies, the PSC will set-up experimental time-of-day rates in certain communities.

Viren is hopeful that within three or four years a significant portion of the state will be covered with time-of-day rates, if results of the studies are encouraging.

Tom Knobloch, a Union Electric rate engineer, says Union Electric's study should be completed by Jan. 1, 1978. The company is conducting load research on 538 small industrial, commercial and residential customers.

These customers' meters are being monitored with magnetic tape recorders, which note hourly electric usage. Knobloch says these recorders cost $200,000 and the entire study should cost $500,000.

The Union Electric study is a cost-of-service study, that is, what it costs customers as a whole to use electricity during certain hours. Time-of-day rates would break down these customers into classes.

Kansas City Power and Light has not begun its survey of customers, says Howard Brickley, public information representative for the company. He believes their study will take two to three years to complete.

Brickley says his company will wait until after the test results before it decides whether time-of-day rates are a desirable replacement for current rates.

JEFFERSON CITY — There would be room for six persons in a fallout shelter during a nuclear raid. Twenty college freshmen were assigned the responsibility of choosing from a list of 10 who would make it and who would not.

Almost without hesitation, a "boring" bookkeeper was sentenced to death. A "too old" rabbi and a biochemist also would have to die. And this freshman composition class, in an exercise designed to teach idea classification, wrote off a successful author. All the students agreed with the young man wearing a "Support water sports. Date a swimmer" T-shirt when he said, "Anyone can write."

Anyone?

Not very likely, and ironically that is why these students are in English 1 on the UMC campus. Along with half the freshman class, they flunked the Missouri College English Test (MCET), bringing enrollment to 2,200 students in 97 freshman composition classes this year. That's up 15 per cent in the last five years, 20 per cent in the last 10. Solving this problem won't be as easy as A, B, C.

Attention centers on what is said to be an inability of American students to read or write the English language. One survey of writing skills taken by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, first in 1970 then repeated in 1974, found that students aged 17 used simpler vocabulary in more awkward, run-on sentences and more incoherent paragraphs than in 1974.

In deciding who should wear the dunce cap for this apparent failure, the high schools blame the junior highs who, in turn, blame the elementary schools.

Winifred Horner, University professor and director of lower division English courses, finds such buck-passing ridiculous. "We are all in this together. Any problem at the college level is shared by the entire English discipline," she says.

The way Horner sees it, an English department has two purposes. The first is to give students some understanding of their literary heritage. The second reason English is studied, she said, is to show students how they use language and how they are used by it. "These cannot be separated and they shouldn't be."

Spelling out one reason these goals are not reached and why test scores are lower, Horner says English is being taught to a wider variety of cultures than ever before.

Blacks, though certainly not blacks only, she explains, have "special" problems when they reach the University. All along teachers who overlooked the existence of a black culture told young blacks their language was "wrong."

She said the difficulty of making the transfer from their dialect to a standard written English, a complicated exercise anyway, is made more severe with this emotional handicap.

Another reason some undergraduates can't read the label on a can of pet food is simply and sadly that no one bothered to teach them how.

Horner says that in the past, the University could have safely assumed a student would have learned the mechanical skills of language in earlier grades. Today such assumptions are out of the question.

Teaching all English 1 sections at the University are 45 graduate teaching assistants. Horner says they are involved in a "rigorous, highly developed program to train them to teach composition." Under the direction of Horner and assistant professor of English Russell Meyer, grading, teaching techniques, lesson planning and classroom performance are checked.

The program, Horner says, is "highly reputed" and puts this campus "way ahead of the rest." When other large universities dropped freshman composition requirements in the student strike days of the 1960s, this one did not. Now, with dollars tight, those schools are having trouble reinstating the courses.

Although it is wonderful that graduate students are learning how to teach, critics wonder if at the same time undergraduates are learning how to read and write.

Programs such as this one, in which the brunt of teaching falls on assistants rather than full-time professors, have been punctually criticized. If the function of the American college is to provide the best possible education with the best possible resources, then the best possible teachers should be in the classrooms.

This is not to suggest that graduate assistants necessarily are incompetent. But some students at the University say it only makes sense that they would prefer to be taught by more experienced faculty.

To make sure undergraduates find more professors at the head of their classes, Gene Lyons, a former English teacher at state universities in Arkansas, Massachusetts and Texas, suggested states enact laws requiring senior faculty members to teach a certain number of basic courses.

Cringing at the thought in a tiny, book-filled office is Walter Johnson of the Coordinating Board for Higher Education. "I think the adoption of such a proposal would be inhumane, unethical and would serve to make the life of the undergraduate unbearable. I can't think of any better way to prove the hypothesis that education is a painful experience." Johnson says he would hate to see young college students become victims of the wrath of "professional professors," professors who cannot reach them anyway.

A bit more relaxed about the college student who doesn't know where to put his commas is Carl Willis, assistant director of counseling services at the University.

Willis now is studying "the amounts and types of English experiences that freshmen bring with them and their relationship to performance on this campus." Until the results are in, Willis will ask what all the commotion is about.

Over a long period of time, Willis guesses, the lower MCET scores might reflect only normal fluctuations in educational achievement. In the late fifties, with the blast-off of Sputnik and an advanced technology on the rise, a coldly scared United States placed great emphasis on the educational advancement of its youth. This effort continued through the 1960s. Later, the horror of being drafted to Vietnam kept college men on their toes.

Now what is there, Willis wonders, to keep students motivated? He says that maybe education has come full circle, arriving at the same level of achievement it was at before these major events had a sociological impact. He suggests we wait and see.

Depending on what he finds, Willis will propose one of three alternatives to the University. English department policy could remain as is, a policy in which Emglish 1 sections and teaching assistants are added like salt and pepper, as needed. So long as the department remains a political heavyweight at the University there shouldn't be too much trouble.

University admissions policy, however, may have to be changed. Presently there is no specification for the amount of high school English required for acceptance. Entrance hinges on a formula computed by using the student's rank in the high school senior class and the aptitude test scores. Willis surmises a change in admissions standards is doubtful because too many potential college students would be turned away from the doors of a public institution.

Finally Willis may propose that a remedial English program be set up. Problems such as who would teach the courses and how many credits they would carry could be ironed out later.

Time of day may determine cost of electricity rates in the future

By TERRY JUDD
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Just as long-distance telephone rates are cheaper during certain times of the day, electric rates in the future may be cheaper during certain times of the day.

The concept is called time-of-day rates and currently is being advocated by the Missouri Public Service Commission (PSC) as a possible alternative to present rate structures.

Under time-of-day rates, it would be cheaper for electric customers to run nonessential appliances during non-peak hours. For example, it would be profitable for a ratepayer to run a dishwasher late at night rather than a hot afternoon, when many people would be running their air conditioners.

The stimulus for time-of-day rates is that the PSC hopes to reduce the growth of peak-hour demand. By reducing peak-hour demand, utilities will not have to build as much power generating capacity.

Fewer plants would be required and expensive power plants are one of the reasons for larger rate bases and contribute to higher rates. Time-of-day rates might reduce the need and number of these expensive peak-hour plants.

"Under the current rate structure, the rational consumer has no incentive not to use peak-hour," says Michael Viren, director of the PSC's Utility Research and Planning Division.

"Under time-of-day rates we're passing on to consumers the price signal that tells them the cost of the next unit of power," he says.

Viren says under the current rate structure the customer pays the same rate for electricity no matter the time of day, as long as monthly electric use does not exceed a certain number of kilowatt hours.

These rates are based on electric companies' average cost for the year. Viren says rate-payers barely cover the costs electric companies face when they operate their expensive peak-hours plants, but during low-demand period rate-payers cover expenses.

"Time-of-day rates would distribute demand more equitably," Viren says. "There's one catch however, we don't know what consumers will do under time-of-day rates."

He says with current rate structures, consumers tend to conserve more during non-peak hours. Time-of-day rates should shift conservation efforts more into peak-hours.

But to find put more about consumer behavior, the PSC has directed Kansas City Power and Light and Union Electric of St. Louis to monitor a sampling of ratepayers' electric usage. Upon completion of the studies, the PSC will set-up experimental time-of-day rates in certain communities.

Viren is hopeful that within three or four years a significant portion of the state will be covered with time-of-day rates, if results of the studies are encouraging.

Tom Knobloch, a Union Electric rate engineer, says Union Electric's study should be completed by Jan. 1, 1978. The company is conducting load research on 538 small industrial, commercial and residential customers.

These customers' meters are being monitored with magnetic tape recorders, which note hourly electric usage. Knobloch says these recorders cost $200,000 and the entire study should cost $500,000.

The Union Electric study is a cost-of-service study, that is, what it costs customers as a whole to use electricity during certain hours. Time-of-day rates would break down these customers into classes.

Kansas City Power and Light has not begun its survey of customers, says Howard Brickley, public information representative for the company. He believes their study will take two to three years to complete.

Brickley says his company will wait until after the test results before it decides whether time-of-day rates are a desirable replacement for current rates.

SHOPLIFT

Here it comes again . . . another shoplifting pitch. We know you've heard it before, but read on. Shoplifting is stealing. It is punishable by law and it labels you a criminal. It can wipe out your hopes for the future. It gets you a court record that can't be erased. Say goodby to college plans or landing a job. Employers will think twice before they hire a thief. Is that wallet, necklace or lipstick you pocket worth the price you must pay in the end?
